NOXIOUS WEEDS

REMINDER TO FARMERS

THE Department of Agriculture consider it important to remind farmers of the importance of taking up the work of dealing with noxious weeds at the very first available opportunity. Not only are such weeds noxious and injurious to man, but they also tend to reduce food production. It is essential that they should not be allowed to take the place of useful food or forage plants. Over the greater part of Ireland certain weeds have now been systematically destroyed for a number of years and it should be the aim of all occupiers of land to do their part in maintaining and extending the improvement already effected. The farmer who neglects in this respect would do well to recognise the injury which his negligence causes to his neighbours. The compiler of land who fails to cut weeds is liable to a fine of £5; and, on a matter of fact, this penalty was imposed last year by a Tery Sessions Court.

PUBLIC AUCTION

On defendant's premises, defendant's furniture, etc. to satisfy the amount of debt and costs due on foot of said Bill. Deceased. All articles by me under said Bill. Deceased.

THOMAS W. JAFFE (Ltd.) Sheriff of the County of Limerick
