Human Remains Found During Excavations. While engaged in excavation in connection with the erection of the new schools for the Christian Brothers De La Salle, on the site of the old military barracks, Navan, workmen discovered during the week the remains of at least a score of persons. The skulls were in perfect state of preservation. The remains were interment in a suitable place at a later stage. These human remains are believed to have been interred there for 300 years. The military barracks, were erected on the site of the old barracks, and destroyed towards the end of the year 1840.
