Extract of a letter from Lieut. Rose of the Santa Margarita frigate, to his Brother in this City, giving the particulars of the action with the French frigate L'Amazon, both of 36 guns, dated at New York, August 8.

At break of day, on the 29th ult. chased a sail in the S. E. Cape Henry bearing W. about 5 leagues: On approaching her it proved to be a French frigate, with six large ships, standing under a crowd of sail towards us; we veered ship and stood to the northward. The frigate made signals to the fleet, chased us till 3 P.M. when she tacked and stood to the westward. Having now lost sight of the large ships, we tacked and stood towards her to bring her to action; the enemy presently also tacked, and gallantly met us.

At 5 o'clock she commenced other, bring her starboard guns, and directly wore ship: We reserved our fire till we found means to take her in the instant of veering—this was performed by a well directed fire from our starboard guns—we now closed within pistol shot, at which distance the action continued an hour and a quarter with unremitting fire on both sides. She then struck her colours, and we found her to be L'Amazon, of 36 twelve and six, with 30 men, commanded by the brave Viscount Montgivaud, who was killed at the beginning of the action. After taking possession of her, we used all endeavours to shift the prisoners on board us, to repair our damages, and make the best of our way out of the reach of the great ship; but inevitable delays occurred, and having but one boat in condition to hoist out, we secured only 20 prisoners, 4 of them Officers. The shattered condition of L'Amazon, from losing her main and mizen mast, presently after she struck, and having 4 feet water in the hold, encumbered our embarkments; nevertheless, we towed her all night, bidding to the N.E. Early the next day we descried 13 French line of battle ships bearing down upon us; we contrived to get our Officers and men from on board the prize; and, had circumstances permitted our removing all the prisoners, it was our worthy Commander's desire to have sunk her, and thereby prevent the fleet, the Lord Admiralty recovering their frigate. But his humanity prevailed over this idea—here were a thousand, but now great many prisoners, and 50 of them misera- pated, companionly wounded. Our main-mast is shot through morning, having in several places; the fore-mast, fore, main way, her three top and mizen top-masts, and several of the yards at half-day. Long-arms, several shot between wind and 12, and the men of William and Spring stay, were all shot away; were 63, leaving lower throats and cross-sail rendered unfit well collected together shattered, and running rigging very ordnance stores, were to render. On the first broadside Mr. Drymple, Midshipman, son of Sir John Daire, Roebeck packet frigates, was killed.

LIMERICK INDEPENDENTS.

At a general Meeting of the LIMERICK INDEPENDENTS, at the Council Chamber, on Sunday the 29th Day of September, 1782.

Major CALEB POWELL, in the Chair.

RESOLVED unanimously, That our Parliament considering the Volunteer Army of Ireland to be a sufficient Defence for this Kingdom, against any Foreign or Domestic Encroachments, did Grant to Great Britain an Aid of Five Thousand Men from the forces on this Establishment.

RESOLVED therefore, That we consider the raising of new Regiments, under the Name of FENCIBLES, as an improper and unnecessary Measure, conveying an ungenerous distrust of the Volunteers of Ireland, injurious to the Service for the Navy (so very essen-not to desert the Standard of Liberty for the banner of Despotism—from an association of citizens every thing is to be hoped, from an army of hirelings every thing is to be feared.

Is there a man among you so dead to every sense of military honour who does not feel hurt at the institution; that after the anxiety, toil, and expence you have voluntarily subjected yourselves to, during five years, in the service of your country, yet that its security is not compleat without being burthened, with six regiments of undisciplined Fencibles?—We hope and believe that there is not an Independent Corps in Ireland, who does not catch fire at this alarming measure; and that with us, will unanimously resolve to disqualify the man who shall be base enough to desert the cause of honour, in order to accept the wages of inquiry.

United amongst yourselves you need not fear the machinations of your enemies. Every attempt to defeat your endeavours will prove abortive.—Selfishness, venality, and corruption must shrink before the manly determined resolutions of a glorious army of freemen, that would seem to have been raised by the inspiration of the Almighty, and hitherto conducted by his wisdom.

RESOLVED. That an unequivocal renunciation of the claim of right to legislate for Ireland, internally or externally, on the part of Great Britain, would be highly acceptable to a nation, no less eminent for its gratitude than patriotism, and tend much to promote that harmony, so necessary at present to the British empire.

RESOLVED. That an Irish Bill of Rights is an idea we highly approve of; for as Irishmen we cannot object to any measure which would seem to add greater security to the freedom of Ireland.

HERCULES ROWLEY, Chairman

LOYAL LIMERICK VOLUNTEERS.

At a full Meeting of the LOYAL LIMERICK VOLUNTEERS, held at the Council Chamber, on the 29th September, 1782.

Major THOMAS BURGESS in the Chair.

RESOLVED unanimously, That we consent to be contrary to the Legislature, and to the truly Patriotic concurrence of the Volunteer Army, after the usual and approved Representation of them by Parliament, declaring them to be fully sufficient for the Defence of their Native Land, after granting that generous Aid of Five Thousand Troops from this Kingdom, for the IMMEDIATE Service of the Empire.

RESOLVED, (with one dissenting Voice only) That the raising of such Troops, must tend to disturb that Tranquillity, and mutual Confidence which should henceforward prevail, between the two Kingdoms, and therefore such a measure (so fraught with evil) at this Crisis, must naturally convey an ungenerous distrust in the Loyalty and Spirit of the True Friends, and real Emancipators of this Country, aided by the Virtuous Conduct of the gallant Volunteers, and improperly to obstruct New Births on the People, in order to procure Commissions for such Delinquents of the Volunteer Service, as are ambitious of Enrolling themselves under the Standard of Corruption, and to withdraw themselves from the Banner of Glorious Freedom for the Wages of Venality; consequently little Safety can arise to the State, as such will endeavour to disunite and disperse the Volunteer Army, on whose STANDARDS

All Spirited Young Men, who are willing to Enter into the MINSTER REGIMENT, commanded by the EARL OF INCHIQUIN, Esq; are desired to apply THERE. HUNDRED, Esq; Major of said Regiment, who will give them every Encouragement. And (if required) give any of his Countrymen who wish to join him, Security of One hundred Pounds that they shall not be sent out of Ireland, or Detained into any Regiment whatsoever. Oct. 3.
