

enrুদ্ধock, who said nothing more, he seconded the motion. Edward Astley opposed the previous saying the worthy Aldermen merited for his preferance in endeavouring to Parliament. Our ancestors at a time agreed to the appointment of sep- arate Parliaments; but the same political re- ason existing, Parliament ought to be re- newed; he claimed this not as a favour, but as the people's right, and thought it the more necessary at present, as from the late coalition it was impossible but steps might be taken for continuing Parliaments for ten, or fifteen, or even for rendering them per- manent.

Mr. Sawbridge said, he should be glad to see gentlemen no less behind a previous motion, for, if by means of it his motion should be lost for that day, he should renew it the next day, and gentlemen should give it an open and affirmative answer.

Mr. Astley agreed to withdraw his motion, which being done, the House divided on Mr. Astley's motion, when there appeared the following Majority

U B L I N, May 24.

It is much to the credit of his Majesty's Ministers, it may be said politically, that they have not hesitated to recognize the Address of the Volunteers, as coming from men of dis- tinguished character; by the honour of a reception. The Volunteers have been a kingdom for their Sovereign's service, or they immediately embodied af- ter the declaration in Parliament, and were not able, circumstanced as they were, to defend Ireland against a- ny invader of the enemy.

It is expected that the late Kilkenny Volunteers have been distinguished with some honours concerning the late extraordi- nary execution of the Fencibles quartered in the city, such an outrage be permitted to pass un- der the eye of a court-martial on the commanding officer on the alarming occasion, or that he should be brought before a court of ju- dicial inquiry, will be a lasting disgrace and reflect on the military discipline, discipline and honour of the land.

It is public defalcation, as come to light, that the Collector of Excise has thought proper to conduct with 5,300l. His securities are not for the sum.

From good authority, from a gentleman of Philadelphia, and in the confidence that the American ports are open to all parts agree, that they have a more favourable prospect than what the nation affords, of a most abundant and plentiful harvest of the fruits of the earth.
