The Bill for appointing Commissioners to enquire into the fees and perquisites of the inferior departments of the public offices having come down from the Lords with amendments; a short conversation took place on some of them, particularly on that which gave to the Privy Council a power of controlling the Commissioners, so far as to direct objects of their enquiry. On the question being put, that this amendment do pass, the House divided, when there appeared for the amendment twenty-five, and against it thirteen; but this number not being sufficient to constitute a House, which requires forty Members, they were under the necessity of adjourning till to-morrow, when the business will be resumed.

DUBLIN, May 3.
HOUSE OF COMMONS.
Saturday, April 30.

The House sat in Committee on an engrossed Bill from the Lords, to amend the acts for the better regulating the Office of Sheriffs, and ascertaining their Fees. It was afterwards reported, and ordered to be read a third time on Monday next.

The Circular-Road Bill was reported, and ordered to be engrossed.

The Order for going into a Committee on the Cork Bank Bill, being read, the House resolved itself therein.

The Right Hon. Luke Gardiner in the Chair.

Sir Francis Hutchinson, previous to the reading of the Bill, observed to the Committee that there was a Clause in it that impowered the Trustees to apply all Sums they may receive under this Act, in discharge of all the Debts of those Bankers, in such Order and Course as those Trustees shall judge most for the Benefit of the Creditors. He observed that this Clause was unjust, and in direct Opposition to the Bankruptcy Laws, both of England and Ireland, which direct that the Creditors shall be paid rateably in proportion to their respective Debts.

The Attorney General said the bill gave a remedy to any Creditor who should think himself aggrieved, by an application to the Court of Chancery, which might give him redress in a summary way.

Sir Francis Hutchinson replied, that it was unreasonable to expose the Creditor to the expense and trouble of such an application.

The bill was then read paragraph by paragraph. Mr. Molineux spoke against the principle of the bill, as an ill precedent, and an improper interference of Parliament in a case which the laws for Bankers and Bankrupts had sufficiently provided regulations: He then moved, that the Chairman quit the Chair.

The bill was supported by the Attorney General, Mr. D. Latouche, and Sir N. Lawless, as highly advantageous to the creditors.

Mr. Molineux withdrew his motion.

Monday, May 2.
The House went into a committee on the bill for the encouragement of the fisheries, reported, and ordered to sit again.

Mr. Forbes then moved that an address be presented to the Lord Lieutenant, "That he would lay before his Majesty, the humble desire of the House, that he would be graciously pleased to make such provision as in his wisdom should seem meet, to enable the Right Hon.

which body he was a member.

LIMERICK.

Extract of a letter from Cathel, dated April 30. "We know not what a day may bring about. The inhabitants of about fifty decent houses, and cabins, who enjoyed their property, and breakfasted in security yesterday morning, are now lamenting over the ashes of their worldly substance, without a place to lay their heads. About three o'clock yesterday, a fire broke out in a Cabin on the Camas-road, where they were brewing, it quickly communicated to others. The people's distraction at such a calamity in this town, is such, that there is no making them do any thing but screech. You may remember a row of high decent thatched houses fronting this street, as you come in from Golden. I saw the first of the fire and used my utmost endeavours to prevail on them, to apply wet blankets to the house that was next, but still untouched;—but no one stirred. In ten minutes after, the whole range was on fire, and the dryness of the thatch, made it impossible to stop the flames where they once reached. Luckily one Gentleman got blankets put on the Cabin at this side, which probably prevented the whole town from being consumed. Had it happened at night, in all probability the greater part of the town would have been burnt to ashes. The poor inhabitants are completely beggar'd. The soldiers behaved with the utmost humanity and activity. A collection is begun for the relief of the sufferers, which I advised to be carried on briskly, before people's feelings, which, on those occasions, are too apt to evaporate, and subside."

Monday night was apprehended and lodged in Gaol, by Mr. John O'Brien, High Constable, a fellow, who calls himself Roger Ryan, on whom were found two Coats and Waistcoats, which he had stole out of a Taylor's House in this City.

On Tuesday last Mr. Joseph Carey, assisted by John Bloomfield, Esq; and the Distillers of Newport, seized a private Still, Head and Worm, near the Mountains of Bilboa, which he lodged in his Majesty's Stores in this City.

Same day the Surprise, Capt. Asquith, an East-India Packet, sailed from this harbour for London.

This morning a female Infant was taken up drowned near the Old Quay, very much disfigured.

Died. This morning, sincerely lamented, Mrs. Kelly, relict of Mr. Michael Kelly, Merchant, whom she survived but 11 days.
