and port of Caas at this time. The fecurity of the Spanish territories in the West Indies, and the threatened renewal of the bombardment of Algiers, are the protested objects of these exertions; but an extension of power is shrewdly suspected to be the real one.

There is a new mode of taxation in the State of New York, which cannot ferl to be pleafant to a people who are fo fond of freedom; this is proportioning the collection to the quantity of goods a man may have in his shop, and feizing perhaps an hundred pounds at a time in the house of a wealthy man, and taking not a fraction from his neighbour.

The unfortunate Capt, M'Kenzie, who was convicted for the murder of Kenneth M'Kenzie, a private foldier in the African corps, now lies dangeroully ill in Newgate, from a paraly-Ric Stroke.

DUBLIN, May, 10. HOUSE OF COMMONS. Saturday, May 7.

Mr. George Pontonby, after many pertinent observations on the delays, inconveniencies and expences that attended the present mode of recovering the Debts due to the Crown, particularly in the process denominated Scire Faci-As: where some times the costs of Suit amounted to three times the principal fum due, and the absolute necessity there was to put this department in the collection of the Revenue on a better footing, moved, " for leave to bring in a bill to amend the Acts for the better recovery of the King's debis."

Ordered accordingly, and that Mr. Ponfonby, the Attorney General and Sollicitor General prepare the fame.

Mr. Pontonby prefented a bill for continuing and amending the leveral laws relative to his Majetty's Revenue, and for the more effectually preventing of Frauds therein, (commonly called the Great Revenue Bill.)

The bill being read a first time.

Mr Corry expressed his surprise to find that this bill, which had been to long delayed on account of the uncertain fale of the Propositions for a final Adjustment to the Trade between this Kingdom and Great Britain, in the British Parliament, was now brought in, and too on a fudden, before the Honfe was acquainted whether or not the Propositions had passed in England; and requested, that if any account of that kind was arrived, that the Gentlemen in the confidence of Administration, would please Died. At Loughrea, in this county, Mrs. to communicate it, having no doubt but a Rt. Hon Gentleman [Sir John Parnel] whom he faw in his place, who had taken fo decided a part in this buliness, would give that fatisfaction a country man and one of the Light Dragoons, to the House?

Gentleman mult have misconceived the matter of this bill, as well as any intended or defigned delay which its introduction had fuffered; for that this bill had nothing to do with the Propofitions, and would have been brought in just as agitated; and that the delay profe, only, from the impossibility of getting the bill ready fooner on account of the variety of new matter it contamed; inform ch, that it was only this very morning that elaft enacting claufe had gone through his h .ds

Mr. Corry reolied that if this hill

......es stated the report and evidence of the state of the goals, whereby it appeared that great cruelties, extortions, and frauds, have been committed by bailiffs, and the keepers of fpunging or lock-up houses; that for one night's lodging only, and keeping a person, had been charged above eight pounds, &c. with many other instances of extortion; he then moved, some resolutions of the necessity of establishing a proper police on the subject, and of building a Sheriff's-goal for the reception of debtors only, with regulations, &c.

Sir John Blaquiere. The criminal persons, and other delinquents pointed out by the report, ought to be punished, and he meant to move an address to the Lord Lieutenant to order the Attorney-General to profecute them,

A Committee was ordered to confider the subject on Thursday next.

Early this morning, the weather being as tair as could be wiffied, and the wind exceedingly favourable with a fine blue azhre fky, Mr. Crosbie's resolution of ascending was announced by the firing of rockets, the discharge of cannon, and beating of drums. An immense multitude, confifting of at least 50,000 spectators, affembled in the vicinity of the barracks, a mong whom were many Noblemen and Gentlemen of diffinction. The process of inflating was begun early in the morning, and great progrets had been made, when it was discovered, it is faid, that the common air had not been extracted from the balloon, previous to the operation of admitting the gaz, from which circumstance the operative power of the inflammable air was entirely frustrated, and the public disappointed, after waiting with the most anxious expectation, for feveral hours,

A few days fince a young Countryman, the only fon of an aged Widow in the Queen's County had his head fo dangeroufly fractured at St. James's gate, that he died in a few hours in an hofpital, whither he was fent. It feems the young fellow was bringing a present to fome Gentleman in town, and refuled paying an unreasonable Toll; upon which the Tollgatherer struck him feveral times on the head. We are forry to hear, that the murderer efcaped, by mean of the confution of the inhabitants on the occasion.

Bandon, May 9. Last Thursday at our fair, some quarrel grose about a stick, between which produced very shocking consequences, Mr. George Ponsonby faid, that the Hon. The entire garrison having armed themselves, and being formed into a body, cut and hacked in a most inhuman manner every person that fell in their way; they proceeded through Irish Town with some of their Officers, who it is faid encouraged the foldiers to kill and it is, though no fuch Propositions had ever been wound both men and women, which they did with a witness, as there are above fifty people desperately wounded, three of whom died fince Saturday, and it is feared that feveral others cannot recover. The Commanding officer happened to be in Cork when this bloody business was perpetrated, and on his tome bills, notes and other papers. We near one of the villains is now in custody, who, it is hoped, will discover against his accomplices, Clonmel, May 9. The desperate banditti, who have fo long diffurbed the peace of the neighbourhood of Culler and Ballinulta, and who are charged with many flagrant murders, still continue formidable and in arms, to the great terror of that ade of the country, notwithstanding the most active exertions of the Tipperary Volunteers, whole efforts, they have hitherto, in a great measure, eluded : It is alarming to observe, that the late most laudable endeavour of Doctor Butler and the Roman catholic clergy, to put a stop to the proceedings of those horrid villains, have been fo far difregarded by them, that they have had the effrontery, even to rhreaten their Priests at their altars: Their appearance abroad, are each armed, with a gun, blunderbuts, and cafe of putors.
