

of nutland, Lord Merchant General and General Governor of Ireland, &c. &c.

The humble Address of the Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese of Waterford.

May it please your Grace,

WE, the Bishop and Clergy of the diocese of Waterford, affectionately equally honored and gratified in being permitted to approach your Grace with this testimony of our duty and respect. Teachers of a religion which breathes a remarkable spirit of loyalty to the King and of subjection to those who are vested with legal authority; it is peculiarly incumbent on us floodily to evidence our firm allegiance to his Majesty, and our profound honour for an illustrious Chief Governor to whom our Sovereign has wisely delegated the distinguished office of presiding over this kingdom.

It is also matter of sincere satisfaction to us, that your Grace has been pleased not only to visit this city, famous for its ancient and inviolable attachment to the Crown of England and for the eminent commercial advantages which its situation bestows, but also to honour with your presence many other important parts of this country; strongly persuaded that the more your Grace's virtues are known, the larger will be your tribute of public estimation; and that the more your Grace becomes acquainted with the State and circumstances of the kingdom which now experiences the benefits of your administration, the greater will be your present and future ability and earnestness to promote its welfare.

We cannot but request permission to add, that your Grace's visit receives a singular luster by a like condescension in the Dukes of Ireland, in whose praises, amidst the general evolution to advance them, it would equally become us to be silent or to enlarge.

To which his Grace was pleased to give a most courteous answer, expressing the highest respect for that venerable body, and assuring them of the constant support, and (what he was every some late circumstances obliged to add) the protection of his government.

THAT our Characters are as fair as Mrs.
Wallplate's is well known to the Public; but she, like an honest Lady, would wish to avoid paying for board and lodging for her son and herself. But we hope by an appeal to the laws of our Country to put it out of Mrs. Wallplate's power to revoke her lawful letter of Attorney, which was given for moneys advanced by us to pay her debts, and instead of paying us, Mrs. Wallplate has converted in her own use a considerable part of the head Landlord's Rent.
We also have a Rent Charge on Mrs. Wallplate's ground for 10l per annum, for thirty years, or one Life. Dated this 28th November,
