

that town about 50 years. Few, if any, possessed in a higher degree talents for relating a ludicrous story, in which he could exactly imitate the manners and dialects of every shire in England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland; he had such a command of the muscles of his face, as to be able in a very extraordinary manner to caricature the features of a number of persons, however different in appearance and manners.—Saturday, in London, the Countess of Cook; her death was occasioned by a stroke of the palsy.

Cork, Dec. 15. It was a happy circumstance for the Proprietors of the New Sugar House in Belfast, to have been insured, which was entirely burnt and a loss of 5000l. readily paid them by the Insurers. When property, not hazardous, can be insured at so easy a rate as 2s. 6d. for 100l. what person would run so great a risque, for the loss of such a trifling expense.

Early on Tuesday morning, the Malt-house of Mr. Christopher Allen, brewer, was discovered to be on fire, which burnt with great rapidity until ten o'clock before the same was extinguished, which happily was not attended with that loss expected by the spectators.—The Concerns were not insured.

Let your hearts overflow with the Milk of human kindness, for your fellow Creatures in distress, relieve them with your money, and with the fragrances of your table, for with such doings God is well pleased.—Our Saviour himself hath declared, that whosoever relieves the least of his brethren, does him acceptable service; and where Job was afflicted with grievous misfortunes, he was comforted on recollecting that he delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that hath none to help him, and that he brought down the blessings of him that was ready to perish, therefore the Lord blessed his latter days more than his first.
