exementam moved that the county of Dublin freeholders petition against the police bill be received-motion put and agreed to.

When the clerk, proceeding to read the petition, came to that part where the petitioners mention the right of Parliament and charter of Dublin, The Rt. Hon. Attorney Gen, faid he would not fulfer any petition to be read in that House that was a libel upon it. The petitioners, added he, take upon them to affert the dignity of Parliament, and the rights of the corporation of the city of Dublin, which the Corporation isfelf this day affembled, does not look upon as invaded. I therefore move, that this petition be rejected. Sir Edward Newenham, laid, that the meeting at Kilmamham was composed of men of the first rank and confequence in the county; men of integrity, honour and virtue; that they were interested in the good order and police of the county; that it was not their intention or meaning to infult parliament; their only with was, to lay their grievances before the house; Sir Edward mentioned that he had another county petition to prefent, but found by the reception of the first that it would be

The following melancholy affair happened near Killaloe; -On Sunday night lalt, one Garrett Byrne, having a suspicion, that his wife was carrying on an improper correspondence with a man of the name of Edward Walth, informed her that he had occasion to take a journey, and could not resure for two days; -the confequence was that Waith repaired to Byrne's house, but the latter returning the fame night detected Walth in fuch a fitustion as must have routed the indignation of every huthand; -Walth attempted to efcare, and it is faid, stabbed Byrne with a fword. but he being armed with a loaded mulquet, lodged the contents of it in Walili's body, of which wound he instantly expired.

Last Tuesday night a fire broke out in the house of William M'Cormick, outfide John'sgare, which confumed the fam, with two adjoining Houses, one of which was tenanted by Christopher Healy, Linen-weaver, 2 very honest, industrious man, who is reduced to the greatest distrels, his looms, yarn, &c. being totally dellroyed, - A fervant maid of M'Cormick's flicking a Candle over her bed, which falling into it, caused the above disatter.

The Rev. Dr. Maunfell's humane exertions in encouraging the people to draw water to the Fire Engine on the above occasion, merits the warmed thanks of the public; in all probabiliky had he not been to active, the whole range of buildings would have been confumed, TYTHEREAS a paragraph bath appeared in the Dublin Evening Pott of the 16th Ult. and thence copied into feveral other Papers, flaring a Transaction, as if between a Mr. M'Kenzie, and one of our Fire Companies, in tuch a Manner as may probably have Injured the Irish Companies in general in the Estimation of the Public, and more especially as the faid Statement hath never fince been refuted by the particular Company that may have occasioned it. Now. the DUBLIN INSURANCE COMPANY against Fire think proper to declare, that the faid Transaction could not have any relation what hever to them, as the faid Mr. M'Kenzie was not infured in their Office; that they never did refuse an Adjustment of any Difference by Arbitration, and have punctually and honourably discharged all their Engagements with the Public from their firft Establishment to the profest Moment, without Delay or any Manner of Litigation, and this they do with no other View than merely to wine away any unjust Prejudice that the printer of an indifcriminate Charge against all the Companies may have improperly occasioned, and which by their Silence they must have participated of alike with any other Company.
