comorous, on which this body of military tuffians ruthed among the company in the pit, whom they termed Bourgeoife, with their drawn fwords, killed one person and wan-, tonly wounded many. The King to flew his disapprobation, has caused the commandingofficer to be deprived of all military and other honours, adjudged incapable of ferving again, and to be confined for twenty-one years. Three of the ringleaders are also to be stripped of the infignia of the order of St. Louis, degraded of their nobleffe, and delivered to the civil power. It is necessary to observe that the Garde de Corps is entirely composed of gentlemen of rank, all of whom are of the order of St.

Militakes relative to the time appointed for trying Mr. Fitzgerald and his affociates, hy a special commission, have been made in most of the public papers. The late allizes of Calllebar (at which one prisoner only was capitally convicted, viz. for horse stealing) was adjourned, not to the 29th inft. but to the 7th of June next, when this important profecution. which to univerfally engages the attention of the kingdom, and in which the juffice of the mation is fo deeply concerned, will be brought to iffue.

It was intimated likewife, in most of the public papers, that the persons charged with attacking Mr. Fitzgerald, were refused to be admitted to bail, and confequently were to be continued in jail until the time of the adjournment; but the fact is, that before the Judges left Castlebar, they were bailed, themselves in gool, and two fureties in 250l. each for their appearance to fland trial at the next affizes for county of Mayo, as an affidavst was made by the attending phylician, that Fitzgerald was out of danger.

On Thursday morning died, General St. Leger, the General was at the play on Monday evening last in perfect health, at Ranelagh the fucceeding day, and a corfe within 48 hours

It is curious to observe, that while the Irish are roaring out for a trade to the East Indies, they are importing potatoes from the coast of Lancashire to supply the Dublin market; and while they are encouraging foreign artifts to increase the manufactures of various luxuries, the natives are literally flarving for want of necellary food.

General Advertifer.

.... tor thele Friars in those dreary and almost inaccessible parts of the Alos, may really be faid to enjoy, in the highest degree, the heartfelt luxury of doing good. The indefatigable labours, and the unremitted zeal of these Capuchins, the exact obediente and wonderful fagacity of the hounds, do really beggar all description, and had I not feen, in crofling St. Bernard's mountain in 1786, some of them fearthing for dead bodies, that night by chance lie buried in the fnow, I flould have been apt to look upon travellers accounts a this species of dogs, as upon legendary tales, and other extravagant fables.

The fate of Holland feenis now at the eve of being decided. The politive affurance given by the French will animate the one party, and the | ticular respect and of the high fenfe they enrequifition of the King of Prutlis that the Enperor will ftand neuter in the dispute, indicating a fettled purpole in him to attempt to reinstate the Stadtholder in his rights by arms, will spirit up the other. Every thing feems to cry havock, and the dogs of war are ready to be let slipped. It appears, however, beyond a doubt that Holland will be the stage on which France and Proffia are determined to try their thrength, and in the end it must become an appendage to either the one or the other. In the mean time the Mynheers have, in order to ward the blow, made their news Writers throw. Frederic into a fit of illnefs, from which it is impossible he can recover; perhaps next mail they will kill him; but it is possible he may convince them to their coft that he is still alive. What conduct the Emperor will purtue, is difficult to fay; the election of a King of the Romans must probably make him temporize till he has carried that point; but it cannot be imagined that he will remain an idle spectator when fo important a game is playing in his neighbourhood. The Austrian as well as the Prussian Eagle will endeavour to come in for his share of the prey; and as, should a war break out, he will evidently be able to cast the balance on which fide he pleafes, he will no doubt provide in the belt manner, for his own interest. Perhaps by this interference he may awe both Potentates into a composition, and Holland may be difmembered with as Il tle bloodshed as Poland was, In the mean time the British Ministry has a very difficult part to 2ct. It is certainly for our interest that France should be engaged in a continental war, in order to turn her attention from her marine; but how can that be done, without involving ourfelves in it, confidering his Majefly's German connexions, is the query. Were it not for thele, we might view the ftorm with indifference, and exclaim, Suave mari magno, &c. DIED. At her feat at Newgrove, County
