

and rank, who had stabbed him and afterwards herself; but that upon a minute enquiry into the truth, no such outrages had ever been committed.

Were there any towns or villages destroyed during the time you served under Col. Champion in Rohilland?

A. When the army first arrived, several villages were deserted, and some outrages might have been committed; but the witnesses did not know of any town or village which was destroyed.

He proceeded to state that at the first alarm the husbandmen and manufacturers flew on all sides from their dwellings; but after the defeat of the Rohillas, and the death of their general the Nabob Vizier issued general orders to protect the natives, and accordingly they returned to their habitations.

That by the treaty of peace which followed that war, it was stipulated, that the Rohillas should depart the country, and cross the Ganges, which was accordingly done by about forty thousand of them, including women and children—That they were not molested in their retreat—And that the country of Rohilland, when he marched back, was in as good a state of cultivation, as when they entered it—These are the striking features of Major Balfour's evidence, and we left him under a close examination, at ten o'clock.

Cork, May 15. Notwithstanding the severity of the laws, we are sorry to find the Cotton and Cheque Manufacturers did last week assemble together in a field, and swore in combination against Mr. Deaves, Cotton Manufacturer of this city, on which a warrant was issued against several of the ringleaders, which was executed by Mr. Rowland Sharp, Peace Officer, who after great exertion, apprehended and lodged in Gaol; Wm. Hegarty a principal, and D. Connor, who kept the Committee House, where they assembled.

On Friday last a piece of stuff, the property of Mrs. Abernathy, of Broad-lane, containing above forty yards, was feloniously stolen off the shop window, by Mary McCarty, a most notorious offender, who was apprehended by the above Mr. Sharp, with the stuff in her custody, and committed to Gaol. She was tried this day at the Sessions Court, and received sentence to be privately whipped.

Marrried. Last Saturday at St. Finn Harry's, by the Rev. Mr. Tuckey, John Nugent, Esq; of London, to Miss Lucy Nagle, daughter of Garret Nagle, Esq; of Pountaiville.

We have the pleasure to inform the public, that a Mr. Jackson, in inspecting a lead mine, which was working by a company of gentlemen near Bangor, fortunately discovered a copper vein, or silure there. It was immediately tried, and as far as they have pursued it, appears to be as valuable an acquisition of the kind as has ever been discovered in this kingdom.

We hear from Tipperary that on the first instant, a Sadler of that place, who has been a good deal addicted to drinking and gaming, was reprimanded by his wife in terms of wholesome advice, which he disliking, knocked her down with a violent blow on the breast, when to his great surprize Forty-four guineas and Twelve half Crowns fell from her bosom.—The first experiment succeeded so well, it is thought he will try a second.

The act lately passed by the Legislature authorising the business of pawn-brokers, and allowing them a reasonable interest, ten or fifteen per cent on small sums lent on pledges; will be of the utmost service to poor trading persons, who have often been obliged to pay to usurers, fifty, sixty, nay an hundred per cent.

Last Monday evening four companies of the 28th regiment marched into town from Castiel, and yesterday morning proceeded for Galway, where the regiment are to be quartered the ensuing year.

Tuesday morning a villain perceiving the door of Mr. Jasper White, merchant's house in Pump-lane, open, entered the parlour, and stole thereout two silver cups, and two large gravy spoons.

Died. Last Monday at Garden-field, near Newcastle, Bryan Sheehy, Esq; a gentleman of great benevolence and humanity, and deservedly regretted by a numerous acquaintance.
