riding by Windgap chapel, he saw several hundred people (simultaneously assembled, upon which he rode up to them to know the cause; when they informed him, that they were sworn to come there and could not think of violating their oaths; upon which he warned them directly to disperse, and that if he could get information of their assembling in that manner again, that as he had the command of the army, he would most undoubtedly call them out and have those people apprehended and committed to gaol; whereupon some dispersed and others refused but they were by this time sworn to meet on the mountain of Raclaris, in the county of Tipperary, the Sunday following, at six o'clock in the morning, which they did to the amount of 2000 and upwards; and Mr. Cox having information of this intended meeting, applied to Sir George Dunbar, Bart. commanding officer at Carrick, to have the troops there ready at four o'clock; on Sunday morning Mr. Cox called at the barrack at the appointed hour, and found all the officers and privates ready, from whence they marched off to the mountain of Raclaris, about four miles from Carrick, where they found above 2000 of these people situated on the top of the hill; upon Mr. Cox coming up to them, he exhorted them to depart peaceably, which they resolutely refused, but did not act riotously, and remained (army and whiteboys) in that situation for about an hour, when, on a sudden, about 1500 of them, on horseback, rode off to the chapel of Owing, in the county of Kilkenny, about 5 miles distant from the mountain and notwithstanding their being on horseback, and making all the expedition in their power, the troops were at Owing almost as soon; when they came up, they took the two principal leaders of them, whom they found with books in their hands, swearing all the people of that parish: one of them, one Wells, of Dovehill, a man in good circumstances; both of whom were committed to the gaol of Kilkenny. Too much praise cannot be given to this magistrate and the army, who, notwithstanding being bruised by stones (several of which were thrown at them) never fired a shot, or gave the least stab of a bayonet."

Cork, Aug. 14. Last Thursday night, a number of White Boys, to the number of 600, assembled at the Church of Kilmichael, armed with guns, swords, pikes, iron crow, and sledges, and after many outrages, came to the house of Mr. James Good, of Arnaneen, an honest, industrious man, with a very large family, and after destroying most of his effects, entirely pulled down his house.

Mr. Good fortunately was not at home, or he would have been murdered. Mrs. Good was turned out with seven small children into the fields, where they remained till morning.

Friday two White Boys were brought from Inchegeelagh, by a party of the 4th regiment. The Officer who commanded at Inchegeelagh, attended the escort for six or seven miles, under some apprehension of a rescue; however no such attempt was made, but several shots were fired by the country people, which was answered from the surrounding hills by repeated shots.

Yesterday two of those deluded people called White Boys, were under the escort of a Corporal and six privates of the 4th regiment conducting to our county gaol, under the warrant of Augustus Warren, Esq; when the party was most violently attacked by above two thousand White Boys near the Ovens, whom they kept off until their ammunition was expended, when they took shelter with their prisoners in the house of Major Dumas, at Coolroe, there they defended themselves until they were reinforced by a party from town; the prisoners were safely lodged in the co. Gaol. In the above attack, three of the delinquents were shot dead, and seven wounded, but not one of the army received the slightest hurt.

Saturday night a fine Horse the property of condu& of the White Boys, is the exaggerated manner in which it is represented in the neighbouring kingdoms, affecting our public credit, and preventing men of wealth from settling among us. The speediest methods ought therefore to be taken, to suppress such outrages, and every man of property and lover of his country, should consider it his duty and interest to quell their riotous proceedings and encourage the peasantry to a peaceful demeanour; by which alone they can hope to obtain the protection and interposition of the legislature in their favour. Their violence and cruelty have already materially injured their cause, and alienated many of their most respectable friends, who scruple not to affirm, that their complaints and inquietude arise, not from the pressure of tythes, or the abuses in the collection of them, but from a turbulent spirit, and an impatience of all legal restraint or controul.

By a gentleman from the county Tipperary, we are informed, that on Monday last a duel took place between a Mr. M'Cr--th and a Mr. Ke--ny, in consequence of a dispute which arose at a billiard table in Cashel.—Mr. K. though the challenger, had the first fire and missed his antagonist; Mr. M'Cr. then fired and mortally wounded Mr. K. (the ball entering near the groin) notwithstanding which he fired his second pistol, immediately after which he dropped, and shortly expired; exculpating with his dying breath Mr. M'Cr.— who had fired his second pistol in the air.
