Ennis, April 7. Friday last that real friend of humanity, Mr. Howard, arrived in this town. He visited our gaol, of which he testified his approbation.

Saturday last, Mr. C. P. Bolton, Surveyor of Excise, assisted by Mr. A. C. Stritch, guager, seized a number of canisters of snuff, and several packages of roll tobacco, found with different private retailers in this town, which they lodged in his Majesty's stores.

Same day the above officers, and a party of the 27th regiment, discovered a private brew-house at Clare, wherein they seized a large black pot, then at work, which they also lodged in his Majesty's stores.

This morning, at two o'clock, the said officers, and a party of the 27th regt. from Clare Castle, seized a large brewing pan found at work at a private brew-house in this town, which they lodged in the Custom-house stores. —It is somewhat extraordinary that after the repeated warnings given by Mr. Bolton to the different persons concerned in this illicit trade, that they still persist in brewing shebeen, which must terminate at last in their ruin, as the abolishing that business is finally determined on.

LIMERICK.

As the present and the preceding months are the seasons when potatoes are generally planted, a correspondent thinks it may be a very useful hint to farmers and cottagers, to mention a mode by which two crops can be derived from the same ground, and in such a succession as materially to serve the poor of this kingdom. As it has been reduced to practice a few years since by a Mr. Maurice Murphy, and is effected with little trouble, and no great expence, tho' it cannot but produce very extensive benefits, the communication will consequently deserve attention. Mr. Murphy recommends sowing beans with potatoes, and as the former arrive at perfection long before the latter are fit for digging, the poor may find a nutritious food, which often will obviate the necessity they are under of tearing the unripe root from the earth to satisfy the craving of hunger.

The method to be observed in planting the beans is as follows: When the potatoes are covered, holes about three inches in depth are to be made with a stick, or dibble, at a foot distance, upon the surface of the ridge, as near the trench as possible, in each of which a bean is to be deposited.—One man and a boy will in a day sow half an acre.

This method of making the most of potatoe ground has obvious advantages, such as are not unworthy the notice of the greater farmers, as well as the poorer classes, and where the poverty of the peasant renders it impracticable, there can be no opportunity more favourable to an humane and beneficient landlord of supplying his wretched tenants with a few shillings, for the purpose of so capital an improvement, than such a one as is under consideration.

Horse or garden beans will equally answer. —Perhaps a little encouragement of this idea may extend the cultivation of a plant which in England is found exceedingly useful for the support of man and beast.

It is a pleasing consideration, that the Irish Parliament, in the session of 1786, granted a premium of 5l. per acre for the cultivation of potatoes, and 3l. per acre for the cultivation of beans, and that the Dublin Society have offered premiums for the same purposes.

This day, the ship Pace, James Stewart, master, sailed for Baltimore in Maryland, having on board near 100 passengers and redemptioners.

There were eight Packets due in Dublin on Tuesday morning last, on which day the Packets arrived at Waterford regular, bringing with them the mail of the 3d of April; the latest by Dublin was the 26th of March.
