

By a recent failure in the town of Lisburn, several poor people in this city have been ruined.—One poor young fellow, who was only a merchant's clerk, has lost upwards of seven hundred pounds (more than he was worth in the world) by accepting bills for Mr. K——; where these failures will end, Heaven knows, but they (like the influenza) attack the very great and the very small.

The Limerick Chronicle.

L I M E R I C K.

As the Corn trade has now become an object of the greatest consequence to Ireland, it is hoped that all Farmers and Dealers will take the utmost care to have their grain properly fayed and perfectly clean, fit for a foreign market. The time is approaching when the produce and manufactures of this kingdom, will gain a proper place in the scale of European commerce.

The eyes of the whole kingdom are now fixed on three great objects; the first is the reformation making by the Lord Lieutenant in public offices, by which means such large sums are brought to light, that it is imagined the national debt will be paid off next year.—The second is the finishing of the Canal from Monaste even to Limerick, which will be of vast importance to the Publick, and calculated to be finished in four years.—The third is the prohibition of Whiskey in small quantities, by which instead of drinking that poisonous draught, the working people will taste the sweets of sobriety and industry, when they drink good malt liquor.

The Cathedral Church in Cashel, was burlesquely broke open last week, and eleven Surplices, the property of the Minister and Choir

The following cure for the disorder called the FOOT HAIT in Sheep, was accidentally discovered by a Farmer, near Luton, a short time since.—A cart going down a lane in its way from St. Alban's with spirits of vitriol, &c. for a gentleman then making some ærostatic experiment; the vessel containing the vitriol had leaked its contents upon the ground, which immediately after, some of the lame sheep occupying, and being obliged to remain all night, the farmer, to his great surprize in the morning, though before they could scarcely stand, found them so recovered as to walk with very little impediment. This the farmer happily conjecturing to arise from the vitriol, was resolved to try an experiment of their cure by washing the feet of near 200 the next day with water very strongly impregnated with the oil, or spirit of vitriol, which succeeded so far beyond his expectation, as, without any repetition, to cure them all. This disorder, like the rot, is supposed to be infectious, and it is to be observed, that if too much vitriol should be accidentally applied, the sheep being turned into a pasture, the dew will prevent any bad effects in consequence; and this mode will be found far less expensive than laying quick lime for the same purpose in places where the sheep often must go through.

Charles Pickford humbly returns his grateful thanks to the Grand Jury of the County of Limerick, having been released from a long confinement, thro' their bounty, by the payment of 7l. 11s. 8d. (by Colonel Lefroy,) as a compromise for a debt of 22l. 15s.—Col. Lefroy will apply the remainder of the money he received being 8l. 15. 5d. as soon as a proper compromise can be effected for the release of any other Debtor or Debtors.
