name to the propositions of the fright from, Gentleman (Mr. Pitt) the Houles acted contiintionally, and according to him acted under the calls of necessity, but without ever acknowledging any right in the persons whom they thought the best entitled to the election in fimilar cases; and he concluded with giving his hearty negative to the amendment.

Mr. W. ELLIS faid, that a greater quef-, tion was never agreated within the walls of the House. The powers entrusted to the Crown he observed, were entrusted by the people.-If any vification fell upon the King, by which he was incapable of exercifing those powers, Parliament was called on to reftore those powers, as far as the necessity of the cafe required, and the powers of the Crown, to which the people are entitled, as foringing originally from them, in case of incapacity in the King, could not be withheld. Rewards, emoluments, and honors, he observed, are the principal instruments of governments; for merits called out into action, should meet a suitable reward; but if you flop the fource of royal munificence, and deprive the Prince of this part of his prerogalive, you then, indeed

" Place a barren sceptre in his gripe."

Col. FULLARTON infifted that to withhold the powers of the Sovereign in his prefent lamentable fituation, from the Prince, were TREASON against the state. He wished to know if the King's powers were to be confidered as his wardrobe, and never to be worn but at the caprice of the Sovereign? The Right Hon. Gentleman had faid that every thing withheld from the Regent, was gained to the state. But he begged leave to differ, for the King is the leg flative Sovereign, and the executive magistrate, and the constitution could not be fafe, when one branch infringes on or mutilates the other. He quoted Montelquien in favour of his propolition, who afferts that " the Constitution of England is that instant in imminent danger, when the legislative power is suffered to violate the executive." He next illuded to the case of Charles VI. of France, when the Queen of that unhappy Monarch, order the influence of a Chancellor and his party, who were afraid they would lofe their ituations, if they did not prevail on her to ombine in their artifices and intrigues against er fon. They were successful in their villaines, and they prevailed on the weak woman unaturally to combine against the Prince; and or the purpose of depriving him of his rights, he great feal of Charles VI was put to an intrument by the Chancellor for that purpofe .he Prince being of course driven from his ingdom, and fiript of all his powers by a icked faction, had at length the good fortune refeuing it, and under the character of harles the Victorious, was afterwards the profert and adoration of his people.

The question was then put on Mr. Powys's nendment, "that the words originally pro-

Med, fland part of the question."

On a division, the numbers were-Ayes 227 Noes 154- Vajority against the amendment -The original question was then carried.

the full and unimited perional exercise of the royal authority, yet he should be restricted in fuch a manner as to render his power a mockery, which, instead of accelerating will retard the operations of government. The adoption of this plan, not only comprehends an alteration of the person, but the very nature of the function, and makes two changes instead of one. It ought, however, to be recollected. that as there was a great probability of his Majesty's recovery, which he would be very happy to fee foon verified, the temporary feltem now about to be adopted, should be limited to a particular pealod, and no longer, unless found expedient, when the same powers might be easily renewed or prolonged, according to the emergency of the times. Let anv day be specified for the supposed recovery of his Majesty; and let the powers alluded to exist no longer than during his Wajesty's illness. The calamity may probably last but a short time; but from the tenour and spirit of the plan now in agitation, we were acting in the dark, and proceeding to infliture a new form of government, without power, without vigour, and without a specified time for its existence

A division took place, and the numbers were -Ayes 216 - Noes 159 - Majority for the Refolution 57.

The confideration of the remaining resolutions was, as we understood, postponed to Monday, on account of the lateness of the hour. - At half past two o'clock, the House adjourned to Monday.

MONDAY, Jan. 19.

The House went into a Committee on the State of the Nation, when the following Refotion was proposed by Mr. Pitt, viz. " That the care of the person of the King, during his indisposition, shall be vested in the Queen: that her Majesty shall also have power to remove from, and appoint to, any of the offices of the Royal Household; and that, to enable her Majesty the better to discharge such trust. a Council should be nominated to advise her in all matters relating thereto: and that this Council should be empowered to examine the King's Phylicians from time to time, as they may fee occasion, with regard to the state of his Majesty's health, and shall make a report to Parliament of the refult of fuch examina-

After a convertation between feveral of the

The Hon. Mr. Bouverie moved, as an amendment, that that part of the refolution which gave the Queen the appointment of the Royal Household, should be omitted.

This amendment, after a few words from Lord North, Mr. Fox, and the Minister, on mere matter of form, was put by the Chairman.

And on a division, there appeared For Mr. Bouverie's Amendment 165 Against it Majority for the Minister -64

A Motion was made by Lord North to infert, after the word Household, " for a time The question was afterwards put from the to be limited," against which Amendment there

His Majelty has had eight hours and a half of found and continued Il ep, but is not quiet this morning.

On Saturday last the Queen had an interview of one hour with his Majetty. She was introduced to the King by General Lascelles Groom of his Majelly's Bedchamber, and Sir George Baker. During this interview his Majesty behaved with the greatest propriety and calmnels, and the meeting appeared to have every defired effect.

Yesterday at noon the Queen had another interview with his Majesty for two hours;

A report prevails at the west end of the town, that his Royal Highnels the Prince of Wales has written a letter to Mr. Pitt, that, under the restrictions proposed, he will not accept the Regency.

Yesterday her Grace the Duchess of Northumberland, was fafely delivered of a Son, at Northumberland house.

D U B L I N, January 24.

HIGH SHERIFFS, for 1780. Co. Dublin, C. S. Monck, of Grangegor, elq. Co. Carlow, Henry Bunbury, efq. Co, Monaghan, Thomas Singleton, jun. efq

Cork, Jan. 22. We hear from the Country of various injuries fullained by the flood on Saturday; that Macroom-bridge has been carried away, and leveral other bridges materially injured.

Yesterday, at Kinfale, James Married. O'Hara, of Galway, Elq; Barritter at Law, to Mils Moore, eldelt daughter of Counfellot

Moore, of this city

Died. Last Tuesday, Mr. Thomas Barrett, late an eminent grocer in Caftle-freet.

March March March Comment of the Com The Limerick Chronicle.

LIMERICK.

By a Gazette account, we find that the flatute of bankruptcy which was iffued against Mr. John Meaher, merchant, of the town of Tipperary, was superfeded under the great feal of Ireland.

We have received feveral Letters relative to regulations wanting in the streets and on the quays, and we can affure the writers, that the Mayor and the Water Bailiff are now exerting themselves to carry said regulations into effect.

This morning at nine o'clock, a fervant of Cantillon Hiffernan, Efq; dropped fuddenly dead in a thop on Willon's-quay,

Married. On the 19th inft, in Dublin, Roger Hendley, Efq; Lieutenant in the first Royals, quartered in this city, to Mits Hendley, only daughter of the late Earbery Hendley, of Ellen grove, co. Carlow, Efq; an amiable young lady with a large tortune.

A Cargo of Liverpool COAL, Just arrived to

FISHER and HARVEY. To be Sold at the low Price of ONE GUINEA per Ton. (ift Month) Jan. 19, 1789:

not preci ciples .-January

CF be Enla Jan: 26 1789.

three in Appl

This Da At th

Print of Infect a Pattern Allo.

with the bourne to flop Dances. When RICK, Varie and SH hea Tit begin th pital Pr

THI A HO CHINA MONDA will con

N. B. which w will be] receive !

100 177

21 te (c)

DIEDWING

FRO as fl mefne La NEKYL Acres, ar Bog, fitu two Mile Thomas THOM an impro underany

N. B. an Emine Eel Weit it.

Price of