g, one Mara, a Slater, pences.—The County of Clare is remarkable for the industry and peaceable conduct of its inhabitants; Cratloe alone harboured these vil- lains; we congratulate the public on the prof- pect of its becoming a peaceable spot in future.

To every humane mind it must be highly pleasing, to find that Government has at last reflected on the inadequate pay of the military; about half a century past, provisions of every kind could be purchased for a third of their present prices, and yet the pay of the poor foot soldier remained without the smallest aug- mentation;—and to those who compare their then dress, with the elegant appearance they are now obliged to make every day on parade, it is only to be wondered how their scanty pay provide them with the means of paying their hair dressers and wash women.
