gence we are unavoidably led to a repetition of the lame orcumitances - but it is a repetition that farely cannot fail to please every wellwither to his country .- Again we announce a progressie increase of the public income, which is the more acceptable, as we are now able to fay, from authority, that the Minister means firmly to serbit in his plans of retrenchment, and economy; and that there are no exiting engagements which are likely to involve this country a the intricacies and confulions which diffract not of the other kingdoms of Europe. The Britth empire may fecurely enjoy its ungivalled ad unexampled iplendour in permament and serfect peace.

The Eglish Ministry have not yet departed from that line of Christian Perfection which is commendable. They will not retaliate on the Emprets d Rullia, who leagued against their country, left war, nor do they help to support a Revolution, which deftroyed the arbitrary power of France, their uniform enemy-this as returning good for evil -negatively.

Deftrucion by fire increases proportionably with the number of houses-this city, the molt remrkable in Europe for the rapidity with which it is extending, is confequently now more libe to fuch accidents than it has been, and more attention thould therefore be given to the neans of preventing their fatal effects than might have been requifite before.

--- suring service, have been lately dilband. ed; their men have been turned over to Hiberhia's regiment, now quartered in Malaga, and their officers united to the fame regiment, with full pay: The reason of this measure was the freedom with which the French office cers declared their opinions, decidedly favourable to the Revolution in France.

"The Inquisition has not yet ceased its parlecution in this country. A Doctor Velacz, a Canon of the Cathedral of Malaga, was lately taken up for holding as an opinion, that any act of the body is harmlels or indifferent provided the mind be employed in the contemplation of God. -he certainly will have time to think otherwise, before he is admitted to have a peep at the fun."
