Them bide miscuously into a pit dug for the purpose. The flench caused by the putrefsction of the heads and limbs fcatterred thro' the streets, was become intolerable-and Plague, Pestilence, and Famine seemed stalking on with tremendous firides, to put an end to those whom fire and fword have hitherto fpared.

By the information of a gentleman arrived in town from Dieppe, we are enabled to flate, that, on Saturday, at day-break, when he left Paris, no information had been received of any new progress made by the Duke of Brunswick.

in France.

The letters from Holland, brought by the mail of yesterday, mention, that it was reported there, that General Kellermann's stmy was inclosed by the Prustians and Austrians.

Twenty five thousand poor mortals butchered in cool blood, in the city of Paris only, in three or four days-from the 2d to the 5th of September !!! From five to feven thousand on the 10th of August only, &c. &c. &c. ! ! ! And yet numerous advocates are to be found in England for the French lystem of Revolution !- Such things are | And notwithstanding we are told that our laws are equal to every purpole of good government, ftill are the Prices. Priefleys, Paynes, &c. &c. inffered to promulgate such Revolution and Republican doctrines, not only in diurnal and other periodical publications, but in books, pamphlets, and even in their pulpits!-Let us hope it is not to in the established church. The peaceable inhabitants of our capital are alarmed with the apprehenfion that the carnivorous, favage monflers of the Continent may be driven by the combined Powers into this country, --- We have laws in being for the destruction of fuch farage quadrupeds :- Would it not be much more falutary to enact laws immediately, to prevent the importation of those noxious vipers? at least they ought to be chained, as hyenas and tigers are in the tower.

Among the most ferocious of the bloody leaders of the Democrats in Paris, is a naturalized lew, who, furrounded by feventy pikemen, each with their pikes furmounted with & bleeding human head, deals out death and destruction to all who are obnoxious to the

There are three powerful realons, why the very great number of arrivals here from France, should excite the immediate attention of Government. One, that it may occasion a rapid rife in the price of provisions, already at a height that occasions much complaint among the lower orders of people. Second, left under the appellation of Fugutives, a multitude of infidious and evil-defigning persons should intrude themselves, with the intention of raising difturbances in this kingdom. Phird, left it should be the means of introducing a great number of raicals, thieves, and villains, who are always cowards, and cannot have principle enough take any fide: thele, therefore, are confiantly the first to run. An inundation of them added to the bad among our own people, might not only render private property very precarious, but even prove dangerous to the State, day of the street of the

Not fewer than 1000 Priefts have arrived within the laft ten days from France.
