

ry, farmers, manufacturers, mechanics, and labourers, on the 25th ult. the following resolutions were unanimously entered into:

That we do form ourselves into a society, to be called the Friends of Universal Peace and the Rights of Man, for the express purpose of informing ourselves in, and diffusing, as far as possible, a neglected, but highly useful branch of knowledge—the Science of Politics; a science of which no man of letters, or any person that boasts the heaven-born blessings of Liberty, should be ignorant.

Thus, with the sincerest wishes for peace, and warmed with the animating fire of freedom, we have collectively and individually agreed to the following resolutions—

1. That all men are born free and equal with respect to their rights.

2. That the sovereignty of every nation ought to be invested in the People; it is their birth-right; all power is derived from them; and every attempt to govern, without their consent, is as wicked as it is unjust.

3. That the people of Great Britain are not fully, fairly, and adequately represented in Parliament; and that a speedy and effectual reform is necessary.

4. That every man in Great Britain who pays taxes, has an undoubted right to be an elector.

5. That it is necessary some peaceable and effectual method to collect the voices of the People be adopted; and the elections annual.

6. That war is the height of wickedness and barbarity; and that if Government were rightly constituted, its existence would be annihilated.

7. That religion is the private right of the mind; therefore there ought to be neither Test Laws or Toleration, but universal Liberty of Conscience.

8. That the rules of Morality are indispensably necessary to every nation on the globe; but we embrace, as brothers and as friends, (provided that their morals be good) all the human race, without distinction of country, religion, sect, or party.

9. That the Liberty of the Press ought to be held inviolable in all nations.

10. That the tribute of our warmest thanks is due to those great writers who have signaled themselves in the important cause of Liberty—writers, though we mean not to exculpate them singly from defects and mistakes, whose labours have extended political science far beyond the most illustrious sages of Greece and Rome could ever attain—they do honour to human nature; we earnestly recommend them to the perusal of our fellow citizens.

11. That it is with the greatest pleasure and satisfaction we behold the increasing number of Societies in this nation, to obtain a Parliamentary Reform; and we are no less pleased with the peaceable order, unanimity and perseverance by which they are conducted. We beg leave to add our humble endeavours to theirs in the common cause, and hope that in the end our endeavours will be crowned with success.

The spirit of inquiry which animates the people of England respecting Parliamentary representation, and other matters of a public nature, must shortly convince the British Minister that he cannot much longer oppose the general sense of the inhabitants in a point so essential to the national welfare. Notwithstanding all his objections as to time and season, it will be found, ere long, that the suitable season for compliance will be when the desire becomes universal and the demand loud—that period seems at hand. There is great probability that the Association at Stockport will be followed by similar societies in different parts of the kingdom. Such a junction of interests, and so strong a representation to Parliament, as will take place next session, has not hitherto appeared; the voice of the people, therefore, it will at length give this question house, and not having his timber friends, the shrouds, to hold by, he fell on the quarter-deck, among the players; he appeared to be killed, but by bleeding he gave signs of life, and is now, we hear, likely to recover—this accident retarded the play for a considerable time.

Died. Last Thursday morning, after a long and tedious illness, Mrs. Austin, wife of Wm. Austin, of Waterfall, Esq.

Ennis, September 24. On Saturday last a most excellent Charity Sermon, for the relief of poor distressed housekeepers in the town, was preached in our Church by the Rev. James Wilmot Ormsby, and notwithstanding there had been only two days notice given, yet so powerfully did Mr. Ormsby plead the cause of the Orphan, the Widow, and the wretched, and so much alive were those who heard him to every feeling of humanity, and benevolence, so finely touched by him, that a Collection was made amounting to 23l. 16s. 10½d.

L I M E R I C K.

Last Saturday a shocking accident happened near Ballymascreeve, in this County, occasioned by the drying of flax in the cabin of John Fahy; he and his wife were burned in a most dreadful manner, and their two children instantly burned to death; on Saturday Fahy and his wife were received into the Lock Hospital, at John's-gate.

It is with an unfeigned concern we are credibly informed from the tillage counties, that the wet and broken weather that has set in for some weeks past, has destroyed more than one-third of the corn harvest of the kingdom. This calamity, though its effect, as to internal dearth, has been often experienced in former times, will now be more severely felt. In those days there was little or no exportation from the kingdom; whereas, for the last four years, there has, on an average, been upwards of four hundred thousand pounds, sterling, value of grain and flour sent from Ireland to other countries, making a prodigious influx of wealth to the nation.

MARRIED. Last Sunday, at Eflin Church, Captain David Wallace, of Drumacomer, in this County, to the most accomplished Miss Halpin, with a large fortune.—Last Monday at Adare, by the Rev. William Rose, Hopton Butler Cox, Esq; of Mount Butler, in the King's County, to the lovely Miss Eliza Smith, daughter to the late Samuel Smith, of Newgarden, in said County, Esq.

DIED. On Sunday last, in Dingle, Walter Hussey, Esq.
