

Limerick Chronicle,

L I M E R I C K.

The High Sheriff of the County of Limerick has received his Majesty's writ of Venire, to summon sixty Freeholders of said county, to appear before the Justices of his Majesty's Court of King's Bench on Wednesday the 7th of November next, for the purpose of selecting a Jury to try Mr. Christopher Gaff, who had been removed from this city by a writ of Habeas Corpus, on a charge of Burglary and Felony.—We are informed that the penalty on such persons as are summoned and do not attend, is 500l.

On Sunday last an excellent Charity Sermon was preached at St. Mary's Chapel by the Rev. Mr. Bourke, in aid of the Charity School lately built in that Parish, wherein Eighty-one poor Boys are clothed, and carefully instructed in their Moral, Religious, and Civil Duties; after which a Collection was made amounting to 41l. 0s. 5d.—We are happy to announce to the Public, that some of the most respectable Protestants of this city assisted as Collectors and Benefactors, on this laudable occasion.

Last Sunday died in the County Goal, John Ryan, who had been committed to said Goal, on a charge of burglary and robbery near Hospital; he put off his trial at the last assizes.

The fair of Newport was yesterday uncommonly crowded, and notwithstanding the greatest shew of Store Cattle, every beast was sold; the price in general was from six to nine pounds. Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of this City, dated Lisle, October 9, 1792.

"There has been a most astonishing change in the affairs of this country; the French are victorious almost every where.—The Austrians, under the command of Prince Albert de Saxe, have raised the siege of this town, and retired yesterday twelve miles from the town, after losing about 4,000 men. They have thrown bombs and red hot balls at the rate of ten a minute into the town, for these eight days, without the smallest intermission day or night: I was this day all over their trenches, nothing can be more curious.—The regularity of their works are astonishing, they have done an immensity of mischief in the town—in one ruin next their works there are four streets, not one single house standing; there are about 400 houses up and down in the town burnt besides, very few for so large a place;—The spirit of the people is astonishing—15,000 men marched in here this Evening with an immense train of Artillery; There were here before, National Guards and Regulars about 40,000; and Dumourier has written to the Municipality this day, that he will come here in a few days with his entire army, to join the troops here and go straight to Bruxelles. I think this is the strongest town in the world, it would require 70,000 men to invest it;—you may have some idea of the extent of the works, when the Austrians with 22,000 men, were able to invest only one Gate called the Gate of Fife. The Arch-Duchess of Austria, sister to the Queen of France, set fire to a match to throw in a bomb on Sunday; men, women, and children, work at present to fill up the trenches, it will be soon done as they work with the greatest alacrity.—The French have behaved with the greatest bravery, and have shewn a most determined spirit.—Worms is taken by Custine; Mayence is probably taken by this time.—The third day of the siege, in the midst of the bombardment, a man married his step-daughter.

"Nice is taken by Anselm, Spire by Custine.—I shall go to Paris to see the fete in honor of the taking of Chamberi, and return to London, and from thence go straight to Ireland them, that they stood knee deep in blood.— On Friday about 9 o'clock in the morning, a shower of bombs fell on the city, the inhabitants of which had lost nothing of their spirit and energy; we are certain that this encrease of fury was to be attributed to the arrival of an Austrian, known by the nick-name of Arch-duchess, and of an Emigrant, whose name alone would be sufficient to excite horror; those two vile personages have been obliged to retire, infinitely dissatisfied at not having enjoyed the barbarous pleasure of seeing this place reduced to ashes—this same day the fire appeared where the cavalry were stationed, in the stores of which a quantity of forage was imprudently left. On this day also a part of the steeple of St. Sauveur was thrown down. After this the fire of our enemies grew more and more slack, and at length on Saturday the 6th of October, about 11 in the morning, entirely ceased. In the afternoon of this day it was an afflicting spectacle to behold all the citizens mutually interested in each others' misfortunes, no doubt could be entertained that they were really brothers, from the emotions of joy or sadness which the preservation or ruin of a house respectively occasioned. There has been a number of citizens killed during this unexampled bombardment, which continued without intermission seven days and nights; many also have been wounded, notwithstanding all which it so little disconcerted the inhabitants, that even marriages were celebrated the fourth day of the attack."

An Independent Freeholder to a Protestant Freeholder, in our next.—Sylvia Syllabus must be content to scribble for her own amusement.

MARRIED. Last Sunday, Mr. Michael Dundon, of this city, to the agreeable Miss O'Brien, of Longford, in this county, with a pleasing fortune.
