LIMERICK.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE LIMERICK CHRONICLE.

By inferting the following you will oblige your Correspondent. C.

When the foul of Marat was, by Charlotte Corde.

From its Sans Culotte manfion expell'd,
To the Devil's realm it winged its way,
And a courfe quite unvaried it held;
When arriv'd at the gates, and preparing to knock, How furpriz'd was the Patriot to find,

The Fiends were endeaviring the Passage to block,

And the doors barricading behind.

In the front flood Old Hornie, with afpect most

And arm'd with the fury of Hell;
He sik'd of Marat what he wanted with him?
And Marat was not backward to tell;
Good Citizen Devil, 'twas plainly for this,
And nought elfe was, indeed, in my option,
I came to get from you a true civic kifs,
And a bug of fraternal adoption.

You fool, fays the Devil, how come you to

That such savour to you should be shown, At the crimes of Roland and Brissot I can wink,

For that party was always my own; But for you and your Colleagues, your vileness

As to firike even my Legions with fright; When compared with me, you furpals me fo much. A General Meeting of the Humane Society is requested on Monday next the 2d. of Sentember, at One o'Clock, at the Mercantile Coffee House,

PENNYWELL-BREWERY. ALLEN & BOURKE,

GRATEFUL for past Favours to their Friends and a generous Public, beg leave to acquaint them, that at a considerable expence, they have fitted up a New Copper that will Boil Eighty Barrells Ale, which will enable them to have such a Stock of strong Beer and Ale, as they flatter themselves will not be inferior to any hitherto (so much approved of) as they intend to spare no expence or trouble in bringing it the highest persection; if encouraged, they intend to Brew Strong Beer, which they hope may remove that prejudice so much in savour of English Porter.

Pennywell, 31st August, 1793.

N. B. Said Bourke will Set from the 29th September next, the Front HOUSE in William-Street, Newtown-Pery, lately inhabited by HENRY MUSGRAVE. (2)
