

they therefore advanced with a desperate and invincible valour, and being sustained by the remaining army, that memorable victory was gained which decided for a while the fate of Flanders, Brabant, and no inconsiderable portion of Germany.—Similar exertions, however, would in vain be expected from poor starved priests and decrepid Nobles.

The French Convention has contrived to find employment, though certainly not of the most agreeable kind, for all the Citizens. The Nobles and Priests are to be busied, some in hiding themselves, some in running away, and others in suffering the Guillotine. The old, wounded, and infirm are to occupy themselves in preaching the blessed doctrines of anarchy. The young men are all to be sent to the war; and the maidens, while they lament the absence and dangers of their sweet-hearts, have the sweet consolation of amusing themselves in making lint for their wounds, and in beating hemp.

The negotiation with Mons. Buckholtz, the Russian Minister at the Diet of Grodno, goes on very slowly. The Poles catch at every little circumstance, to retard it; and the smallest encouragement from England, or the open declaration of any other Power in their favour, would induce them to rise as one man, and oppose the shameful dismemberments now making.

The finishing of the French war would undoubtedly effect this; and it is as certain that the present forcible partition of Poland, will, in the end, create fresh disputes, even among the Powers that are dividing it.

As to the Empress of Russia, her conduct in the whole affair, has been entirely selfish.—The appearance of her fleet in the Baltic, is little more than a mockery of the assistance promised the Allies; and notwithstanding all the threats of searh, and an armed neutrality, very little benefit will be derived from it.

The Grand Seignior's determination upon neutrality towards the French, is further confirmed by letters from Constantinople. By these it appears that all the endeavours of M. St. Croix, to pass himself off as a Deputy of the French nation, have been ineffectual; and though he was furnished with a considerable sum of money, he was not permitted to open any negotiation whatever, as a publick character.

On the 30th ult. at Edinburgh, came on the trial of Thomas Muir, younger, of Hunterhill, for seditious practices.

After examining many witnesses in behalf of the Prosecution, and others on the part of the defendant, the Lord Justice Clerk summed up the evidence and commented with much strength of language on the different parts of it; but left it to the Jury to draw their own conclusions.—The Court rose about two o'clock that morning, and at twelve same day the Jury returned a verdict, all in one voice finding the defendant Guilty of the crimes charged.

The Court then proceeded to pronounce sentence, and after a short deliberation, ordered him to be transported beyond seas (to any place as his Majesty, with the advice of his Privy Council, shall judge proper) for the term of 14 years, with the usual certification of return.

Muir observed, that though some in Court might think the sentence too lenient, others too severe, yet had he been carried to the bar to the scaffold, he would have met his fate with equal coolness, so convinced was he of the justice of his conduct. He was conveyed to the Tolbooth.

The Limerick Chronicle.

L I M E R I C K.

On Monday last at 1 o'clock, His Excellency the Earl of Westmorland, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, accompanied by the Right Hon. Lord Fitz Gibbon, Lord High Chancellor of Ireland, arrived in town from Mount-Shannon, under an escort of the 14th Light Dragoons, and immediately proceeded to the King's-Island, where the 34th Regiment, commanded by their Lieutenant-Colonel, the Right Hon. the Earl of Burford, was drawn up to be Reviewed; on the Noble Personages entering the Field, they were received by a royal salute from four Pieces, commanded by Lieutenant Coulson, of the Royal Irish Artillery; the Regiment then went through their evolutions and firings, in a manner so truly satisfactory that the oldest Martinet acknowledged, that for attention to command, close firing, and regular marching, it exceeded any former Review they were ever present at;—Previous to the Regiment marching off, His Excellency assembled the Corps of Officers, returned them Public Thanks for their general attention to discipline, and particularly informed Captain Forbes who so long commanded this Garrison, (and now the Grenadier Company of said Regiment,) that he had in orders from His Majesty, to express his satisfaction for his exemplary Conduct in the late Riots in this County; and we are happy to add, that the first Majority vacant will be bestowed on this popular and justly esteemed Veteran.—His Excellency also returned thanks to Lieutenant Gardner, who commanded a detachment of said Regiment at Diagle, as mentioned in a former paper.

Immediately on the 34th Regiment marching to Barracks, the King's County Royal Militia, commanded by Colonel Sir Laurence Parsons, Bart. occupied their ground;—after passing His Excellency, by companies, in slow and quick time, they went through their Firings in a manner that astonished every spectator, and shews that in a very short time, this Regiment, under the direction of a Commander so justly respected as Sir Laurence Parsons is, by his Brother Officers, and beloved by the Soldiers, that the King's Co. Militia, will be equal to any Corps in His Majesty's service.

A rare instance of Honesty occurred on Monday last at the Mercantile Coffee-house,—a Gentleman on paying a penny change to one of the Waiters, whose name is Foley, gave him by mistake a Guinea, and went off; the Man pursued him and returned it to the Gentleman.—The same Waiter some time ago found a Ten Guinea Bank Note, which he returned to the Owner.
