and Spanish troops, taking the road to Ollouuiles, having four guides along with me (belonging to that place) and having left directions that the French troops, with the cannon, &c. should instantly follow. On the road I met wounded peasants, who informed me that their whole force was now posted in Ollouiles.— When we approached within half a mile of that place, I observed a part of the enemy endeavouring to gain an eminence on our right.
 I detached Captain Haddon and Wemyss, of the 11th regiment of foot, to prevent this, and to advance with their parties, keeping possession of the high grounds, and sent Lieutenant Knight with a party of the same regiment, on the like service, to the left, both of which duties were admirably executed. I then advanced with the aid de-camp to reconnoitre the enemy's situation, and found they were posted in the village of Ollouiles, upon the side of a steep hill, a deep ravine in their front, with a stone bridge over it, defended with two pieces of cannon, and the windows filled with musquetry; about two hundred yards further up the hill, at a ruinous castle, there were two more pieces of cannon, and the walls of the vineyards lined with musquetry. It was now half past six in the evening, without any appearance of the French troops or the cannon from Toulon; it became therefore necessary, either to attack immediately or retire; I preferred the former, and ordered the flanking party to keep up an incessant firing upon the cannon at the bridge; I then ordered the column, under cover of a stone wall, cautiously to advance within two hundred yards, and then, being open to the fire of the enemy, to rush forward, which was executed under a very severe fire; when the enemy instantly abandoned their posts, on all quarters, leaving us in possession of their cannon, horses, ammunition, two stand of colours, drums, &c. They were pursued up a very steep hill to the further end of the village.
 It was now become nearly dark, and the ammunition was expended, which induced me to order the troops to occupy the eminence, as we were in an unknown country, and abandoned by the guides (who fled upon the first fire) After halting for an hour, I led the troops back to Toulon, with the prisoners and cannon taken from the enemy, and on the road we met the French troops and the cannon, which ought to have left Toulon with us, but which unfortunately had been delayed. From the information that we received in the village, and from the prisoners, we found that we had beaten the Elite of Carteaux's army, consisting of between seven and eight hundred men and some cavalry, which had been sent from Marseilles, for the purpose of overawing Toulon, and that they had expected to have been joined the next day by 400 men, and eight pieces of cannon. In this little affair, it becomes my duty to inform your Lordship, that the conduct of the troops, those of his Majesty as well as those of the King of Spain, was highly meritorious.—Captain Monerief, of the 11th, Commandant of the British troops, headed the column with a degree of intrepidity worthy of imitation; and Don Montiro, Commandant of the Spanish troops, conducted himself with equal valour. But the credit of the day was chiefly derived from the great exertions and gallant behaviour of Captain Douglas, Town Major of Toulon; and it is with grief I add, that he was mortally wounded, and is since dead: in my mind, the King's service has suffered a great loss. The conduct of Ensign Forster, of the 30th regiment, my Aid-du-Camp, was such as to give me the fullest satisfaction, and hope will render him an object of attention.
 I have the honour to be, my Lord,

We have received advice from Manheim, that a detached Corps of the Austrian Army under the command of General Wurmsler, consisting of 3000 men, attacked the French on the 11th inst. in the morning, in their intrenched Camp near Rambach, beyond the river Lauter, and took the whole Camp, with 5 pieces of cannon.
 Prince Frederick of Orange has been removed to the Hague, in order to be cured of his wound: He arrived at Rotterdam on the 15th, in the packet boat l'Ecluse, belonging to Flanders, accompanied by the Aide du-Camp, General Bentinck, and the same day set off from Rotterdam in a carriage for the Hague: His wound is in the upper part of the arm near the shoulder; there is no fracture of the bone though the flesh has been deeply entered—hopes are entertained of his speedy recovery.
 Yesterday Mr. Staley, the Messenger arrived at the Secretary of State's Office, with dispatches from the Earl of Yarmouth, dated from the Prussian Camp, near Landau, September 19.
 On the 18th instant, the French attacked the Duke of Brunswick near Pirmasens. After an obstinate conflict, the Duke succeeded in turning the enemy's flank, and completely defeated them. The number of killed and wounded was unknown. Three thousand Frenchmen threw down their arms, and surrendered themselves prisoners of war, and 20 pieces of cannon were taken. The pursuit still continued when the messenger came away.
 There are certainly two Commissioners now in London from Bourdeaux, sent to treat with our Government for the surrender of that city.
 We mentioned some days ago that none of the Field Officers of the Regiments on board Lord Hood's fleet had been sent out along with them. Now, however, they are to be sent with the utmost dispatch over land to Genoa.
 They set out this day.
 Sir James Murray being now arrived, it is to be expected that the Public will be satisfied on various points; more especially that the return of the killed, wounded, and missing, will be published. Nothing but an official account can remove the anxiety which the exaggerations of rumour have produced.
 It is reported, that in addition to those new corps of infantry now about to be embodied, six additional regiments will be raised with all possible speed.
 Every day supplies some instances of the disadvantage, arising from the dismantling of the barrier towns in Flanders by Joseph the Second. It is owing to this measure, that the Allies have now no place of security for their wounded men, and that the British troops especially have been obliged to remove, in consequence of so sudden an operation as that of the 12th instant.
