The circumstances attending the evacuation of Toulon, will not be truly known 'till Lord Hood's dispatches respecting it shall arrive— Meanwhile after so many proofs of zeal, judgment, and ability, which that gallant Veteran has given, we may have the most perfect reliance, that every thing was done, which duty to his Country, and a just humanity to the unfortunate, could demand. [Sun.]

The object of the Combined Armies at present, is to get possession of Landau as a garrison during the winter, which the French are determined to make every effort to relieve.— Each side, according to the Flanders mail arrived this morning, had alternately gained some advantage; the slaughter on both has been immense. The actions continued to the latest period to which our accounts come down, and every day some important event may be expected to take place.

One of the Paris papers of the 27th ult. has revived the project of an invasion of Great Britain. In a letter from Havre de Grace, of the 30th of December, inserted in this Paris paper, it is asserted that great preparations are making to invade England—that all the sloops, flat bottomed boats and merchantmen, had been ordered to be prepared for receiving troops.

Of this invasion no man, we believe, will entertain one serious apprehension: It has often been talked of in the Convention and in the different Clubs, but we have every reason to suppose that it never was really intended.

In consequence of a letter which was yesterday afternoon received by Mr. Justice Addington, at Bow Street, dated from Reading, and bearing the signature of a very respectable person there, stating, that Thomas Paine, the Author of the Rights of Man, &c. &c. was then in that town, the chief clerk of the above office and another person, were last night, by the especial order of the Secretary of State, to whose office the letter was forwarded, dispatched in a post chaise and four, to view the suspected person, and if he should prove to be immediately to bring him to town.

The contagion in the military hospital, at Cork, has taken a very alarming turn.— Doctor Richard Harris, of Clonmel, has gone to give his assistance to Sir Jerome Fitzpatrick, who is exerting all his abilities to overcome it: 74 privates of the 40th regiment seized with the disorder, (a putrid fever and dysentery) are put on board the Sarah, at Cove, which is converted into an hospital ship, and Sir Jerome is constantly on board. Two of the diseased died, in such a putrid state, as to be insupportably offensive before their dissolution.

Yesterday, agreeable to the Company's Bye laws—a general Ballot took place for a Committee for the Company of Undertakers for making the River Shannon Navigable, when the following Gentlemen were elected:

NENAGH ENDOWED SCHOOL.

IN obedience to a Requisition of the BOARD of ERASMUS SMITH, the Rev. JAMES EVERARD, Master of the School at Nenagh, has, at an advanced Expence, engaged a Gentleman Bred in Dublin, who to an accurate Classical Education, has added an extensive Knowledge of the most useful branches of MATHEMATICKS, BOOK-KEEPING, and ARITHMETIC, in the completest and most improved Style;—Mr. EVERARD's persevering attention to the liberty by the entire destruction of Tyrants.— Seize that weapon so terrible to them—that with the bayonet at their backs, they may be forced to run, and hide their disgrace in their last retreats: and France, delivered from her enemies will owe to you the happiness, which the establishment of liberty promises, and the glory of having triumphed over all Europe."

A motion having been made by Barrere, for the exclusion of all those Members of the Convention who were foreigners, Bourdon de L'Oire declared, that since the extinction of the Gironde party, Thomas Paine had never appeared in the Convention, and that he was employed in secret intrigues.

The motion of Barrere was unanimously adopted.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 25.

Letter from the Commandant of the Town and Fort of Vitre, in Brittany.

December 20.

"A resort of banditti in a wood was discovered, attacked and destroyed by 100 soldiers of liberty on the 19th at six in the morning. Three of their Chiefs, a ci-devant General, a Captain of the ci-devant regiment of Brie and his brother, were enveloped in our vengeance. This advantage is of importance to the Republic in two respects; by the check which the wretches have received, and by the discovery of the papers which we found upon them. These monsters were acting in concert with the Catholic and Royal army, and we were on the point of seeing new La Vendee break out in our cantons."

To the Minister at War, by the Commander in Chief of the Army in Italy.

"Head-quarters at Ollioules, Dec. 19

"2d Year of the Republic, One and indivisible.

"CITIZEN MINISTER,

"Toulon is restored to the Republic, and the success of our arms is complete. The Promontory of L'Aiguillette being the place which was to decide the fate of that infamous City, as I have already informed thee, the positions which it presents being to render certain the retreat of the enemies, or the burning of their ships by the effect of our bombs, all possible means were combined, on the 16th inst. to conquer that position. The weather was against us till about one o'clock in
