

...on Saturday with this intelligence.—
Nor is there a doubt but the dispatches of Mr. Liston are to the same effect.

The following notice was on Saturday stuck up at Lloyd's:

"Captain Moulder, of the Friendship, arrived at New York from Cape Francois, reports, that a French Squadron had arrived there from France, and taken to the Cape three English ships, their prizes, and also a Portuguese Brazilian richly laden."

DUBLIN,—JULY 28.

The wool fair of Ballinasloe is now over, tho' the wool was in very bad order, it sold rapidly, and for very advanced prices. The combing wool sold at about 27s. and the good clothier's from 18s. to 21s. There was not a bag left on the green the second day of the fair.

The day night a fire broke out in the brew-house of Mr. Conlan at New row on the Poddle. By pulling down an adjacent building the flames were prevented from spreading, and we are happy to be informed the injury has not been very considerable.

We find that though we have held out many cautions against swindlers, it has not been a sufficient warning. Not many days since a young man, son to a shopkeeper in the North, who was sent by his father to Dublin, to purchase goods to the amount of 200l. unluckily got into company with two sharpers, that have infested this city for some time past, who soon took care to strip him at cards, of every guinea he brought up to town. The young man related this misfortune to a respectable citizen, who humanely took every possible method to find out the miscreants, but without effect.

Yesterday morning a young girl, about 16 years of age, of genteel appearance, was taken out of the Canal near Charlemont-bridge. She proves to be the daughter of respectable parents on the Coombe, whom she had quitted about eight days ago in consequence of some harsh treatment she is said to have received from a Step-father. She was perceived by a gentleman on Sunday evening walking on the bank near the spot where she was taken up, reading a book, and at intervals to have wept most bitterly. The Coroner's inquest sat on the body and brought in a verdict—Accidental Death.

Extract of a letter from an officer, on board the Alfred man of war, to his relation in Dublin, dated Carlisle-bay, May 21, 1796.

"We sailed from Plymouth on the 18th of February, in company with the Royal Sovereign, two other ships of the line, and two frigates, with 60 sail of transports, containing troops, and 40 merchantmen.

"On the first of March, we parted from the fleet in a heavy gale of wind, ten of which joined us in two days after. On the 8th we saw the French frigate, La Favourite of 38 guns and 300 men, with two of our convoy she had captured that morning. We gave her chase, and pursued all night.

"Next morning, she was joined by two French men of war, Le Ambuscade, and Semilante, of 55 guns, and 500 men each. We immediately cleared for action, and engaged the three, and after a severe action of four hours and ten minutes, we captured the La Favorite, sunk the Semilante, and the Le Ambuscade made her escape from the disabled state of our ship, which was very much damaged in her masts and rigging. We had 134 men killed and wounded. The French frigate we captured had 19 men killed, and 15 wounded."

Cork, July 27. On Friday last sailed his Majesty's ship Doris, Hon. Captain Jones, and Santa Margaritta, Capt. Martin, on a cruise—also sailed his Majesty's sloop Hazard. Arrived from Kinsale, the Fox cutter of 14 guns.

Died. Last Friday, at his house in Clonmel, in the 70th year of his age, the Right Rev. D. William Egan, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Dioceses of Lismore and Waterford for 25 years.—He was a Gentleman of great erudition, piety, and charity, and died as sincerely and universally regretted by his flock, as he lived beloved and admired by all ranks and persuasions.

LIMERICK,—JULY 30.

Wednesday evening the Prince of Wales's Regiment of Fencibles, commanded by their Colonel, Lord Rancliffe, was reviewed in the King's Island by Major-General Eustace, who expressed his satisfaction at the steadiness of the Regiment. On Thursday night said Regiment received a Route to march hence on Monday for Westport, Castlebar, and Newport-Pratt.

In a letter received per last Packet from the West-Indies, by a Gentleman of this City, the most honorable mention is made of the intrepid conduct of General Maffey's favorite Regiment, the 27th, or Eniskilleners; at the attack of Morne la Paine, every Officer was so enraptured with their bravery, that with their approbation the Regimental colours of the 27th were permitted to be displayed in the Fort, a full hour before the British Flag was hoisted.—The same letter adds, that all the Officers of the Grampus Frigate were ordered to England, to attend a Court-Martial on Major H—, of the 67th Regiment, who had been put in arrest by Capt. Williamson, of said Vessel.

DIED. On Wednesday last, Michael Dalton, of Woodpark, in the County of Carre, Esq;—the universally received impression of regret, on the public mind, bears the strongest testimony of the many virtues which marked his character in a long career of extensive intercourse with Society; and the deep affliction which penetrates the hearts of his Relatives and Friends, stamps a sense of the duties and offices with which he, in the pale of domestic life, gave continuity to affection, and firmness to friendship: As a Husband indulgent and affectionate—as a Parent tender and endearing—as a Friend steady and warm—as a Landlord lenient and remitting; the Protector of the Widow, the Patron of the Orphan, the Consoler of the Distressed—liberal without ostentation, and magnanimous without vanity;—blending, with the benevolence of the Humane, the sympathy of the Philanthropist. In the various domains of public life, the farther we trace his steps, the more we admire his course. As a Magistrate, rigorous without severity—mandatory without oppression—bold in suppressing turbulence—calm on restoring tranquillity; exercising the functions of his Office for a series of thirty years with clemency and justice, and ever active in establishing such precepts as affiliated Societies, and harmonized Communities. On the devious walks of Industry and Commerce he was ever found the open, fair, and honorable Man, appreciating wealth in proportion to the equity of its attainment, and wishing only to accumulate that he may, by the proper application of it, promote the more general good. In the contemplative
