Dublin—Saturday, January 17, 1799.
CITY OF DUBLIN.

AT a very respectable Meeting of the Freeholders of the City of Dublin, convened by public notice from the High Sheriff of said City, for the purpose of taking into consideration the Question of a Legislative Union between Great Britain and Ireland, held at the City of Dublin, on the 10th of January, 1799.

The HIGH SHERIFFS, in the

The following Resolutions were agreed to;—

Resolved, That as the Commerce and Trade of this country have been acquired by the Union of the British and Irish Parliaments, by an Irish Parliament, and that they should effectually be protected.

Resolved, That firmly attached to the Person and Government, and perfectly satisfied that the present state of British Connection promoted the prosperity of the Empire, and that an Incorporate Legislative Union with Great Britain, highly prejudicial to our mutual interests, and to alienate the affections of the people of this kingdom, and to lay the foundation of irreconcilable jealousies between the two kingdoms.

Resolved, That an Incorporating Union, which would extinguish our own Parliament, and would send a few Irish Members to the British Senate, would change the free Government of this Country into an arbitrary Government, and it would submit the Irish Nation to the power of a power, over which it could have no control.

Resolved, That the House of Commons, and not the Masters of the People, should guide and limit the Power of the Parliament, as the law does the Power of the Judges of the land; and that the Legislature is not competent to alter, much less to substitute another form of our Government.

Resolved, That we invite and conjure all persons, of all religious persuasions, to unite in every constitutional effort, to support our Commerce, and assert our Independence. In the most solemn word, we trust in God! that on the most momentous crisis, the Parliament of Great Britain, and its members, shall guard the Constitution, and to announce to the People of Ireland that they are not to be reduced to the sad necessity of recurring to force, to assert their unalienable rights, which may be necessary when confidence may have been betrayed, and their rights betrayed.

Resolved, That whoever shall propose to have for its basis the extinction of the present Parliament of this Kingdom, we will consider him an enemy to Ireland, to British Connection, and to the Constitution we are sworn to maintain.

Resolved, That these Resolutions be transmitted to our worthy Representatives in Parliament; and we make no doubt they will resist a measure, which, in our opinion, is incompetent to enact.

The High Sheriffs having left the Chamberman Henry Hutton being called there.

Resolved unanimously, That the next Meeting be presented to our worthy High Sheriffs for their readiness in convening a Meeting.
