

The Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Recorder, and Corporation at large, having waited on the Right Hon. the Speaker with the said Address, he was pleased to return the following answer:
My Lord and Gentlemen,

To be so honoured by the City of Dublin, which has ever been eminently conspicuous for its loyalty, its attachment to our Constitution, and its watchful vigilance over all our rights and interests, fills me with sentiments of gratitude and honest pride, which you can more readily conceive than I can express. Accept my most grateful and cordial thanks; and be assured of my zealous perseverance in the conduct you approve.

You have very justly joined a zeal for the empire, and attachment to British Connexion, with an ardent love for Ireland. No man can be a sound friend to Ireland, who does not feel that zeal and that attachment; nor can he ever be an efficient friend, if he does not in every public measure hold them in his view, and make them the rule of his conduct.

Since the Constitution of this Kingdom was settled by its right to a sole, separate, and exclusive legislature being unequivocally confirmed, we have seen its prosperity rising rapidly, yet steadily, its resources increasing for the support of the empire, and those resources liberally and effectually applied. We have seen, and still see, mutual acts of kindness between the two kingdoms, strengthening their connexion, and any commercial jealousies that ever existed happily subsiding. Inseparably united under the same Executive Power, which is equally a branch of the Legislature of each kingdom, our Union is complete to every beneficial purpose, and the project in contemplation deserves not the Name of Union. In my Soul, I think it is fraught with possible consequences, certainly not foreseen by those who bring it forward, that will tend, if not to actual separation, to attempts at least to separate us from Great Britain, to our utter ruin, and to the subversion of the British Empire, now the most happy and glorious on the face of the earth.—I am, my Lord and Gentlemen, with the utmost respect, gratitude, and veneration, your very obliged and obedient Servant.

Waterford, Jan. 22. A letter from Cove of Cork, dated Jan. 18, says—"His Majesty's frigate Shannon, brought into Cove yesterday a very fine French privateer, called the La Grand Indjan, mounting 18 brass guns, 18 pounders, and 2 long twelves, (Iron,) 120 men, out five days from l'Orient, had taken nothing, and came out for the purpose of going after the West India fleet."

Sunday, 7 prisoners were brought in here by a party of the Dorset militia from Carrick, and yesterday, they with three others, were escorted hence to New Geneva, by a detachment from Capt. Wallace's corps.

Clonmel, Jan. 23. We are concerned to state, that this County, for a few miles below Cashel, is far from being tranquil; we are informed, that nightly meetings are held by the deluded people in that neighbourhood.—We are sorry to add, that on Monday night last, some ruffians broke into the house of the Rev. Arthur Lord, near Dunderum, which they robbed of his papers, wine, &c.—Fortunately Mr. Lord was in Dublin at the time.

Died. On Monday night last, Mr. Edmond Dwyer, of this town, Distiller.
