The Sun Insurance Company,
DUBLIN.

AMONG the numerous institutions invented by mankind, none have been of more real utility than Insurance against the risk of loss and damage by that destructive element Fire—by paying a very small sum annually many families have been preserved from utter ruin, who otherwise might be exposed to poverty and wretchedness.

For this salutary purpose a Society of Gentlemen have formed themselves into a Company to extend the benefit of Insurance to Ireland, after the plan of the first office in the world for liberality and extent of business, and the premiums held out to the public being on such a moderate scale, every person who has any property may be secured at a very small expence; and in order to render the security unexceptionable, the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Pounds is subscribed as a fund for that purpose.

Table of Annual Premiums to be paid for Insurance

Sum	Common	Howard	Double	Rate
100 to 1000	25 per cent.	35	55	per cent.
1000 to 2000	25 6d.	45	65	per ann.
2000 to 3000	25	55	85	per ann.

By insuring for seven years an abatement of one year's premium and duty will be allowed.

The Company have also resolved to make Insurance on Lives and Survivings.

By the Insurance on Lives numberless advantages to persons possessed of Life Estates, Pensions, or other Incomes depending on their own lives or upon the lives of others, in so far as they a certain annual sacrifice of a comparatively small part of such income, a comfortable provision may be secured for a wife, children, or dependant, who, but for such provision, would be left destitute upon the death of the proprietor of such life income, or of the person upon whose life the income depends.

One example will be sufficient to shew the utility of this measure;—A person of 30 years of age may secure for his widow and family 100l. by paying in cash of death within one year 1 x 13 3 within seven years by paying annually 1 x 15 0 whenever the death shall happen, by paying annually 2 x 13 3

A man not exceeding 30 may secure to his widow, not exceeding the age of 20 years, 100l. by paying 2l. 6s. annually.

The lives of two persons, not exceeding 30 years of age, being insured, the party insuring paying annually 4l. 9s. will be entitled to 100l. on the death of either of them.

Purchase and Sale of Life Annuities.

The Company have likewise resolved to purchase and sell Life Annuities upon fair and equitable
