made out to be the case, he should then admit what he had before believ-edly, if not physically, impossible.

Postonby, in reply, begged leave to Learned Gentleman and the House, he after had not fallen under his own inspection, yet they had been commuhim by Lawyers who had no opportunity of knowing the circumstances, and whose he had no possible reason to impeach.

A few observations from Mr. Grey and Walpole, the question was put on the order, like all the others, it passed in the House In conclusion proposed a clause, all persons sitting on Courts Martial, in virtue of the Act, to have complementary year. The clause experiencing op-the Hon. Member determined to divide the House, and for this purpose the gallery was no division we understood took place, the clause being negatived, the Bill passed the House. The House was then resumed, Report ordered for to-morrow. The papers being read, disposed of, or deferred to-morrow, the House adjourned at two o'clock.

At a Court of King's Bench, Armstrong, Esq; came up to receive the order of the Court for having written a letter to Major-General Coote.—Mr. Erskine made a short speech on the part of the prosecution suggested every topic of mitigation, in favour of this unfortunate Gentleman, who had spent upwards of 20 years in the Army, and left behind him a wife and six children.

The Judge pronounced the judgment of the Court, which was—"this Court doth adjudge, that you pay a fine to the Crown of 1000 marks, and that you be imprisoned in the House of Correction for twelve calendar months, or until the expiration of that time, that you give security for your good behaviour for the term of five years, yourself in 1000*l.* and two sureties in 250*l.* each; and that if you do not give security, you be imprisoned until that fine be paid, and security given."
