alted the different parts of your immense power. py in having testified to your Highness sentiis of the unalterable friendship of the very nanimous First Consul, I am still more so in g able to inform my Covernment, that I have a witness to the respectful love which all the ful Musielmans entertain for you, and that I experienced from your Highnels and Ministers great good will, which proves how much you e retained in your hearts an attachment for the est and the most constant of your friends. I the Almighty God, that for the happiness of r people, he will prolong your days free from and trouble, and that he will make your glory wildom to thine throughout the whole universe." Reports respecting the new Ministerial arrangents continue to be circulated with enabating intry. Before the close of the Stock Market terday, the prices were up a little, on the affern that Mr. Pitt was appointed Secretary of State foreign affairs, with a pecrage; Lord Hobart, overnor-General of Bengal; Lord Melville, First ord of the Admiralty, vice Earl of St. Vincent; d Earl of Rollyn, President of the Council. On this subject a Ministerial paper of this morn-presents the following paragraphs: "One thing we can venture politively to flate;

d for which indeed, through us, the public have r some days been perfectly prepared, that a change the Admiralty is determined on, but who is to Earl St. Vincent's successor is not yet officially inocinced.—For the professional character of that obleman we have ever, in common with the whole ountry, entertained the highest respect; but comnanding a fleet, and conducting the public bufiness f the most extensive and most important departdent of the public ferrice, are two very different raised conducts a proved, by his firm and deand wallfield the the one; but his official cawe apprehend the brought equal conviction, Comething motor than mere professional knowthre is requisite fores proper discharge of the high incomencous distribut the First Land of the Adlittley.
