 The prisoner paid all the rent due by the night before that night.

Harrison corroborated the testimony of the property, respecting the first part he took tion of the prisoner at the carpenter's Malico, except that he could not identify as the man who went into the room at night, or who fired at Hanlon; before he snapped his pistol at the person he considered to have been in pursuit of, he fired with a pistol. Having missed the man he retreated to adjust his pistol, and call for when Hanlon advanced, on which he fired two shots, and saw Hanlon drop—effected his escape, but in about fifteen the prisoner at the bar was brought in by of the 93d regiment, with a wound in the left breast bleeding. Witness asked the prisoner in custody, what prompted him to kill the man, to which the other, in the way of response, made the following answer:—
 "I could not say which was the actual made use of."

William Holmes, one of the Conservators of the River, deposed that he was in company with a sergeant of the 93d regiment when they brought the prisoner at the bar on a bay-horse to the depot.

The case for the Crown closed.
 Nally in the depositions, adverted to the difficulties of the prisoner's case, who had to call on their justice and humanity, to see how well they were warranted in dicting of guilty, on the testimony of two who came before them with the dread about their own necks. He took occasion to state the charge of the the knee in the late rebellion, seizing arms in the Queen's county, which had given him a halt.

 He had been married about ten months, and left a young pregnant wife behind him. Would to God, that other wretches who have lately been executed had made such an exit, freely confessing their crimes, and not offending the Deity by equivocations and ambiguous declarations.

Extract of a private letter from Cork, Sept. 26.
 The Corporation of Cork, on Saturday last, voted for the freedom, in a paper box, to the Rt. Hon. Mr.
 Grady, Attorney General, to be presented with an address, expressive of their sense of his manly and constitutional conduct on the late trials in the City of Dublin."
