

ved by the Lisbon Mail, of a dreadful iving befallen the Island of Madeira, on tino. We are now enabled to give a lars of this distressing event. A letter Skey, our Vice-Consul at Lisbon, has ng remarkable passage—"The particucalamity are unknown here, as the Go-Madeira would not suffer the vessel e forwarded his dispatches to convey any ets."

Following letters was received by a respectain the City, from Lisbon—essel has just arrived from Madeira expressreadful news of Fuschal being nearly troyed, on the 10th October ult. by a which fell on the houses with such to raze them to the ground. Upwards of ons perished, and amongst them an En-of distinction and his family—his name is ned.

write from Madrid and Cadiz, that the utrality is positively ratified." te letter to a most respectable House in f London from Mr. Murray, formerly ul at Madeira, but now of Lisbon, states, e night of the 9th of October last, a tor-l down from the mountains on the town l, the capital of the island of Madeira, tible violence, bearing every thing bets passage to the sea. The bed of the eing capable of containing this increase overflowed on each side to a considerable d swept away three of its bridges, and ent church. Mansions, warehouses, in-cattle, and effects of all sorts, were in-tely involved in this resistless element, d to the ocean. The streets of two he town were completely inundated; in s the water reached to the first floor.— ness of the night, the rush and roar of the e cries of the sufferers, the terrors of all, ch a scene as may with great difficulty ed, but mocks all powers of description. morning, however, the violence of the ated; and towards the noon of the next early subsided. Every exertion was now scertain the extent of the mischief, and the distressed of those to whom relief given.

re our information, owing to the Govern-could not suffer the dispatch of any pris, ceases to be particular; one English ne, of the name of Tarlock, are said to red. riends of Mr. Cock, the Vice Consul, e to hear, that although his house and e entirely swept away, yet that he and his family have all, though with extreme most providentially escaped. Nor is tion of any other English family having the slightest degree.

DUBLIN, DECEMBER 1.

of a Letter from London, dated Mon-ing last:—"There was this morning a f General Officers at the Horse Guards, port was made by General Dundas, of structive element was got under, after destroying the upper Floors, where the Fire commenced.

The Postmasters General have been pleased to appoint Mr. John Collins, Postmaster of Bruff, in the room of Mr. Edward Bennett, deceased.

The Antonio Almas, ———, from this Port, for Oporto, has arrived there.

MARQUIS OF HEADFORT'S BALL.

On Wednesday evening last, all the Fashion, Beauty, and Elegance of this part of the Country, were assembled by the Marquis of Headfort, at the Earl of Limerick's house, in this city, where the Marquis resides during the continuance of his Regiment here. Besides the Ball-room, three reception Rooms were opened above stairs; below, two great Rooms were laid out in hollow squares for supper; a third had five small Tables for parties, and the entire was conceived upon a scale of splendor, and conducted with a degree of taste and spirit, that would have done honor to the Metropolis of the Empire.—Among the company, we observed the Earl and Countess of Bellmore, Lord and Lady Maffly, Mrs. Barnard, Miss Quin, the Earl of Caledon, Lord Adare, General M'Farland, all the Officers of the Garrison, Mrs. Maffly, Mrs.
Blewen and all her beautiful family, Mrs. Franks, the Grady's of Mount-Prospect, Belmont, and Grange, the Maunsells, the Dokers, &c. &c.

The Ball was opened by the Marquis, and Countess of Bellmore, and Youth and fascinating Grace continued to sport it upon the light fantastic toe, 'til seven next morning. We were astonished to find that no less than 500 sat down to supper, at which nothing was wanting to gratify the eye or indulge the appetite. The brilliancy with which the Rooms were illuminated, left nothing in the shade;—and Beauty itself, as if expecting this unusual glow of light, seemed to have armed itself with extraordinary lustre for the occasion.

Let narrow-minded Stoics snarl at the superfluity of such an entertainment; the true Philosopher will contemplate with humane pleasure a scene, by which so much money was circulated among the industrious; and with the Poet will exclaim,

Hence the Poor are clothed, the Hungry fed, Health to himself, and to his Infants bread The Labourer bears—

EXPORTS, Nov. 29.—Lord Duncan, for London, 120 tierces beef, 20 do. pork, 30 tierces do 121 barrels do. by Dennis Lyons,—36 casks butter by J. and J. M'Namara,—181 tierces beef, 83 do.
do. by John Torrance,—20 bags feathers, by Bat.
Clanchy,—2 half barrels beef and pork, by J. and J.
M'Namara. Dec. 1.—Katty, for Liverpool, 20 barrels pork, 30 do. beef, 12 tierces do. 23 ox and 25 cow hides, by R. and T. Westropp,—180 casks 13 firkins butter, by S. and J. M'Call,—130 casks do. by Robert Ferguson,—317 salted ox hides, by Seymour and Co.—12 bags feathers, 2 do. quills, 8 bales goat skins, by O'Neil and Co. 397 barrels wheat, by John Hill.

DIED.—On Thursday last, in John's-street, Mr.
John Burges, aged 16 years, son to Mr. James Burges, Tobaccoist.

A Commodious Apartment to be Let, in to him, in William-street.

N. B.—The Tenant can valuation, with some Bed Furniture, also Stock, Pa the amount of which, a Y Lime

WINE AND SPIRITS

No. 1, Para

THOMAS FRANCIS

HAVING set his Shop at his friends that he me the Wine and Spirit Busihe has reserved the Office Vaults connected with his His Stock of Wines in of Spirits, is at present of quality as must give satis-The utmost attention mands of his friends, at his Street.

The Sale, by Auction, of will commence on Monday Limerick

THE FASHIONABLE

ASSORTMENT

FERGUSON, 14, CHURCH

Respectfully informs that from Dublin, on Monday received this week, a variety Articles for this season;—
Trimmings, Sarinet Muslin
Plain and Tambour Muslin Cotton Stockings, Velvets Gloves, Silk Handkerchiefs Fine Habit Cloths, Lamb-London Beaver Hats and the usual Assortment of Linen, Lawns, Cambric Counterpanes, Tickens, &c.
Furniture Calicoes.

(29) Limerick

AN ASSORTMENT

THE Third Subscription to have taken place off, (by particular desire,)

SALE OF TOBACCO

TO be Sold by Inch of House, Limerick, on 300 Bales
20 Half Bales

16 Kegs GENEVA, &c.

Being the Cargo of the S from Guernsey, captured L'Argus, Hon. R. King,
ately after the Sale of th will be Sold, with all h lies at the Custom-House ventory to be seen at the
Jan. Limerick

JUST PUBLISHED

AND Sold by the follo rick, viz. John Barry, Gogg in, and Jeremiah L.

The KEY to VOYAGE

by DANIEL M'SWENEY, that he has now ready System of Book-Keeping the like not extant, and