HOUSE OF LORDS.

Monday, Dec. 12.

Walesbury moved the second reading Habeas Corpus Suspension Bill, and Law Bill, the arguments which he to adduce in support of the former, he regarded as equally applicable to the admitted that the power given by these ould be delegated only in a case of the necessity, and, when so given, that they be exercised but under the sanction of a Court. That such a necessity now existed inferred from the rebellion of 1798, the continued spirit of disaffection in a of the population of Ireland, from that it again broke in open insurrection on July. That Ministers were actuated rigid attention to the second part of his law had been resorted to in one inand that in every other case the con-the 23d of July had been tried with pulous respect to the ordinary forms of the power of which Government now the continuance was essentially necessary cession of rebellion; perhaps the very most such a power was vested in them at the necessity of exercising it.

He assented to the urgency of the measured, but conceived that there never tranquility in Ireland until there was redress of its grievances, which thought the alleged grievances.

Ministers for introducing them, took LIMERICK, DECEMBER 21.

The 16th and 46th Regiments, at present stationed at Cork and its neighbourhood, are under orders for foreign service; they will be replaced by other regiments from England.

We find with real concern, that within these few nights, several houses in the district between Cahel and Fethard, (Co. Tipperary) have been forced and robbed of arms.—On the night of the 4th, the house of John O'Connell, of Coliagh, was entered by an armed band, and robbed of two stand of arms, his watch, and some bank notes.— On the night of the 8th, Robert Price's house at Colrain, was plundered in the same way, of two stand of arms, and the house of Dennis Ryan, a policeman, at Knockingow, was on the same night robbed of a gun, sword, and a case of pistols.
The same gang who robbed Ryan, searched the house of John Neale, of Meldrum, on the same night, without success. All these attacks were made at an early hour in the evening, when the families had not secured their houses, or early in the morning, at the moment the houses were opened.—On the night of the 11th inst. a party of the Mobarran Volunteers apprehended Thomas Herrick, who is charged with being one of the party that robbed O'Connell, on the night of the 4th instant.

Yesterday, a Meeting took place at Dowerick, between J. B. Croughan, Esq. and Gabriel Nagle, Esq.—after an exchange of shots, the Seconds interfered, and the matter in dispute was amicably settled.

Last night, Daniel McNamee, of John's-street, Labourer, put an end to his existence, by hanging himself.
