

Application and good conduct during his entire Academic course, and in the most honorable manner, as there never was known better answering; in the under-graduate course, he never missed an Examination and never failed of getting the Premium or Certificate, and at taking his Degree, was presented by the late Chancellor, with a Gold Medal. His morals and religious principles are most excellent, and his conduct has been always correct and exemplary.

On Friday morning, departed this life, in the 57th year of her age, Mrs. Fitz-Gerald, Lady of Augustine Fitz-Gerald, Esq; of Tureen, County Clare.---In announcing the death of this lady, we cannot attempt to convey an idea of the unfeigned sorrow we feel in common with all who have known or even have heard of her distinguished attainments; but the Widow and the Orphan have pronounced their loss much more impressively than our feeble words could endeavour to portray; her charity was unbounded, and while she administered relief to the children of poverty with a bounteous hand, she embittered not the sweetest by show or vain ostentation; in society, which was the most opulent, she was affable and engaging; in private life she blended with domestic care a diffusion of conjugal happiness to a no less fond, worthy, (but we are sorry to say) now inconsolable husband, whose affliction only to be equalled by that of the remainder of this amiable, excellent family, for their beloved parent whose hand is now absorbed in death; but this is too melancholy a reflection to dwell on, and while we lament her death, we are consoled by the idea that the transfer of her soul to the realms of bliss was protracted only by the last pang, and the struggle, while she glanced an eye of confidence on her Redeemer, she may be well imagined to have said,

"The world recedes; it disappears!
 "Heaven opens on my eyes! my ears
 "With sounds terrific ring:
 "Lend, lend your wings! I mount! I fly!
 "O Grave where is thy victory?
 "O Death! where is thy sting?"
