We were happy to perceive that Mr. Talbot's Benefit, last night, was attended by a very crowded and fashionable audience. His performance of Mercutio was chaste and correct. Mr. Gilliston and Mrs. Johnston as Romeo and Juliet, gave general satisfaction; and Mr. R. Jones as Jeremy Diddler, in the farce, kept the house in perfect good humour, and we make no doubt he will, this evening, which is fixed for his Benefit, have full opportunity of Raising the Wind.

There is at present at Brighton a gentleman of much eccentricity of dress and manners. He wears a green coat, very short, and very full plaited sleeves, green pantaloons, boots, and a whip in his hand. His whiskers meet under his chin, his hair very highly powdered, and a round hat fixed on the side of his head; and with the dress we have described sometimes wears a large cocked hat, bound with broad gold lace. He appears about 30 years of age, his name is said to be Cope, and with all this eccentricity of appearance, looks like a gentleman; he is always alone; walks extremely slow, and stops and looks at every lady he passes. If notoriety be his object, he has fully succeeded, as the windows are filled with ladies wherever he passes.

The character of the Pottyfogging class of Attornies was well described by the English Chief Baron, in a late trial—hostes humani generis.

The Roman Catholics of Kells, county Meath, having voted an Address of Thanks to the Marquis Headford, for a beautiful and valuable picture, sent from London by him to be placed in their New Chapel. His Lordship in his answer says: "In my endeavours to add respect and consequence to religion, the advantage, I trust, will be felt by the community at large; and the opportunity has afforded considerable gratification to my own feelings, which ever have, and always will be found favourable to every measure that can draw nearer to that great political one so nec-
