

The accounts by this packet state, that at New York the inhabitants were highly incensed at the fair between his Majesty's ship Leopard and the American frigate Chesapeake. Several meetings had been held, and all communication between the shore and the British squadron ordered to be discontinued: no pilots are suffered to go on board, and all supplies are stopped. In consequence of this, as some of the letters state, the boats from the English ships of war had landed and carried off 50 head of cattle: of course, we presume, payment would be offered, in some way or other, if any such event has occurred. But we cannot believe any British Officer would commit such an act—an act, which nothing but the most imperious necessity, arising from a complete want of sustenance, could possibly justify.

Orders had been issued by the Secretary at War, for all American Officers to repair immediately to Norfolk; and nothing was talked of but supporting the honour of the American Flag.

DUBLIN—August 8.

On Wednesday evening, at the hour of nine o'clock, as Mr M'Kenzie was going in his jaunting car to his house at Rathfarnham, he was stopped by three footpads armed with long pistols, at Rathgar castle, on the road leading from Rathmines to Rathfarnham, and robbed of his watch and money. One fellow went to the horses head, and swore he would blow the servant's brains out if he attempted to drive, while the other two were ridding Mr. M'Kenzie, who had not even a switch in his hand: when they got his watch and money they desired him not to look about for ten minutes, or he would be stopped by another gang and treated worse. Mr. M'Kenzie desired the servant to drive quick to the white house, at the corner of Ranelagh-lane, where he was sure of getting assistance and he would pursue them—which he did, and was instantly assisted by Messrs. Baley, Phillips, Hemming, and others, tenants and workmen to Mr. Osbrey of Rathgar, and the two Mr. Osbrees whom they met returning home.—They went different directions through the fields, to Harold's Cross and Rathmines, when one of the fellows, Owen Byrne was taken and identified by Mr. M'Kenzie and his servant, and some things found on him that were also proved. He was brought before Mr. Justice Sharkey, and committed to the Combe watch-house, from which he was transmitted to Kilmainham gaol.—Byrne is an old offender, was enlisted and deserted, and was in the Provost some time and made his escape.—Mr. M'Kenzie's watch was found yesterday morning in Mr. Sharkey's garden, before his door, where the fellow was seen to throw it.

A number of the most respectable gentlemen of the County Tipperary, have made a requisition to the Sheriff of said County to call a meeting of the Freeholders, to consider of the propriety of addressing their Representatives in Parliament, either to bring in a Bill, or to support an eligible one that shall be brought in during the ensuing Sessions of Parliament, to effect a modification of the present system of Tithes. The Sheriff accordingly appointed the meeting to take place on the 22d inst. at Cashel.

LIMERICK, AUGUST 11.

We are sorry to relate, that on Friday night, as the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Limerick, Col. Smyth, Brigade-major M'Mahon, and several other gentlemen, were returning from Mt. Shannon, where they spent the evening with the agreeable Countess of Clare, their carriages were stopped near Anacotty, by a number of armed villains:—fortunately for Col. Smyth he was prepared; to that and the coolness he evinced at the moment, he was indebted for his escape.—The Bishop's coachman was fired at, and his lord-

The society of Friends were amongst the first who lifted up the voice of humanity against slavery, "the traffic in the blood and bones of man," as it has been emphatically stiled by one of their members. In the benevolent cause, their exertions never suffered abatement, and they have hailed the victory which, after many severe struggles, has been at last attained in the genuine language of gratitude and devotion. The following passage, extracted from the yearly epistle of that respectable body; will be read in the warmest sentiments of approbation by every friend to the human race:—

"We view it as one of the most important acts of public national righteousness which ever dignified the councils of any government; and our minds have been directed in secret prayer to the Almighty Parent of the Universe, that he may be pleased to regard this kingdom for good, and direct its future councils to such further acts of justice and mercy as may promote his glory, in the harmony of his rational creation."

We are happy to hear that our respected fellow citizen, George Alps, Esq. has been left a considerable property in America, by the will of the late Mr. William Weeks, of York, Upper Canada, and formerly of this city. This intelligence must prove satisfactory to every person acquainted with the character of Mr. Alps.

Our races which commenced on Friday the 7th inst. afford a greater display of sporting brilliancy than we have for some time witnessed, and the immense concourse of people from every part of the surrounding country, in vehicles of every construction and with retinues of every description, constitutes a scene far beyond the powers of the pen or pencil to delineate. The assemblage of the neighbouring nobility and gentry has been crowded beyond all example, and their expectations gratified by a profusion of beauty and elegance, and an exhibition of amusement such as few country meetings can boast. The sport on the two first days was good, and on the third was of superior excellence. The fascinating Countess of Clare, to whose liberality the rivals were on that day indebted for their contest, shone with peculiar lustre, and diffused a spirit of gaiety that was caught and confirmed by the concordant feelings of the whole company. If the well contested rivalry of the spirited animals, if the joyous hearts of a collected multitude, and the pomp of gorgeous equipage, could add to the magnificence of resplendent days and extensive prospects, then might it be said that the gladdened face of nature had condescended to seek embellishment from the vicinity of Limerick.

We much regret that the general festivity is not to be terminated, as usual, with the popular amusement of a Masquerade, which is a vast disappointment to many who had already commenced preparations for an appearance in character—but we are of course inclined to suppose that the very best reasons must avert the Stewards in withholding the originally promised entertainment from the sons and daughters of pleasure, and lovers of the midnight mirth.

MARRIED last Saturday night, Mr. Michael Walsh, of Bridge-street, to the amiable Miss Ellen Barry, daughter of the Widow Barry, Patrick-street.

Travellers, August 7.—Bryan Connel and his son Denis Connell, a lad of about twelve years of age,

The following Advertisement has appeared in the Correspondent—the sentiments contained therein, reflect the highest honor on the character of that ancient County. It breaths the language of the most unbounded humanity—if any thing could heal the wounds of a People, who may feel and think themselves aggrieved, such universal conduct throughout the country, must prove that the grand object of a country, should be to unite all parties in the grand cause, and we conceive the foundation is just laid, and doubt not but the high and respectable Grand Jurors of the kingdom, will adopt those useful and honorable pursuits—and we sincerely trust, the extension of those feelings will be the unceasing object of every honest Irishman.

"We the Protestant Grand Jurors of the County of Kilkenny, assembled at the assizes, held on the 3d of Aug. 1807. Resolved unanimously—1st. That we lament the necessity which has occasioned the re-enactment of the Insurrection Bill, and we hope that the existence alone of it may be sufficient to preserve the peace of the country, without obliging the Executive power to call that act into operation, or to resort to any measures of strong coercion.

"Second. That we think the present a proper opportunity to express our heartfelt satisfaction at the peaceable state of this our country, and at the good will and harmony which exists between its Protestant and Catholic Inhabitants; and it is our opinion that it is most necessary to unite by every tie the hearts and hands of all the People of Great Britain and Ireland against the common enemy; and that nothing could contribute more to accomplish this most desirable end than the extending to our Catholic fellow-subjects an equal participation of all the privileges of our happy Constitution as enjoyed by us their Protestant Brethren, and which it is our most earnest wish that they may speedily obtain.

"We the Roman Catholic Grand Jurors, feel particularly happy in concurring with the truly liberal sentiments of our Protestant brethren, whose example if universally followed, could not fail of uniting every arm in the empire in defence of our common country."

[Here follows the Roman Catholic Grand Jurors.]
The following address to the Protestant Gentlemen of the Grand Jury of the county of Kilkenny, was unanimously agreed to by the Roman Catholics of the county and city of Kilkenny, convened at the assizes:

We the Roman Catholic gentlemen and freeholders of the county and city of Kilkenny, return you our warmest thanks for the manly sentiments of affection and liberality you have been pleased to express towards us.

We join in sincere congratulations at the undisturbed appearance of this our country, which we are well assured principally arise from the friendly intercourse which exists between the inhabitants of all sects and persuasions.

The continuance of this tranquillity will, we hope, render it unnecessary for the executive power to resort here to the enforcement of the Insurrection Bill; and we pledge ourselves to use every effort to maintain this happy tranquillity by a steady resistance to French principles and French domination.

We feel highly gratified at the liberality with which you have expressed your wishes, "that the full enjoyment of all the blessings of our happy Constitution should be extended to us"—It has made an indelible impression upon our minds, and, from the effects such sentiments have had upon us; we are well convinced, that should corresponding measures be adopted, they would stimulate to enthusiastic ardour every hand and heart in the defence of our King and Country.

The Expeditions having been completed, and now proceeding to their destinations, we give the following statement of their force:
