

merit and party returned at 6 o'clock on Monday morning.

We have little doubt but that a system of similar activity and energy, would in a short time put an end to those nocturnal meetings.

Yesterday a very numerous meeting of the noblemen, magistrates, and other gentlemen of this city and county, was convened at the Exchange, in consequence of a letter from the Under Secretary of his Grace the Lord Lieut. to Sir Rich. Harte, our chief magistrate, at which the utmost vigour and exertion to suppress the present nightly deprecations was determined upon, and several resolutions adopted. See Advertisement.

We were happy to see so respectable, so numerous, and so unanimous a meeting upon a question essential to the well-being of our county. The High Sheriff's even and impartial conduct in the chair, gave general satisfaction.

The meeting was attended by, the Lord Chief Baron, Lords Massy and Clarina, the two County Members, the Hon. John Massy, Sir Richard Harte, Messrs. Oliver, Waller, P. Smyth, O'Grady, Massy, Monsell, Conyers, Rose, Studdert, Westropp, Ryves, Croker, Gradys of Grange and Belmont, Lloyd, Lake, Wilkinson, Cox, &c. &c.

It is a matter of pleasure to those who admire our constitution in its purity, to observe from the resolutions of the above meeting, a disposition in the magistrates of this respectable county, to commit the people rather to its sheltering protection, than subject them to the operation of a bill intended for a state of general disaffection. The enlightened opinion of our ever to be respected Chief Baron, had its due weight in checking the few objections that were against the system of sound policy and moderation adopted. Be our opinions as they may, on the provisions of those bills so lately in the ordeal of public investigation—we should apprehend it, in the present instance, would be applying a perpetual blister to remedy humours curable by the more genuine and lenient provisions of the common law. The deluded wretches who have hitherto disturbed the peace and committed outrages in the neighbourhood of this city, will, we trust, appreciate the mild decision of yesterday—otherwise, they will find the strong arm of the law lifted against their guilty heads.

we have to state that the disgraceful practice of houghing cattle has been manifested in this county a few nights ago, when 60 fine sheep, grazing on the lands of Hollywell, the property of George Comyn, esq. were barbarously cut and mangled. Four persons suspected of being concerned in this outrage have been apprehended and lodged in the guard-house of Eonistymon.
