Sunday evening, a working tallow-chandler, in James's-street, Dublin, beat his wife to such excess, that she expired on the spot. The next day a coroner's inquest was held on the body, who brought in a verdict of willful murder. The wretch has been apprehended and committed to prison.

The Earl of Moira takes his departure from this country, for England, immediately.

The eldest daughter of the Earl of Granard has bestowed her fair hand upon Lord Rancliffee.

The County of Monaghan, which has some time since exhibited a scene of tranquillity at an election for Knights of the Shire to represent that County in Parliament, is likely to be warmly contested upon the present vacancy, occasioned by the death of their most venerated representative, the late Richard Dawson, Esq. who so much enjoyed the confidence of his constituents, that their partiality for his genuine worth, and the noble purposes to which he devoted his talents, elected him, by the unanimous voice of the county, into five successive Parliaments as their Representative. The present candidates are Messrs. Lucas, Westera, Jan. and Verner.

The house of Mr. Mulhall, a publican in Paradise row, Dublin, was robbed by some villains on Wednesday night; they made a large hole under the window of his bar, and carried off all the money he had in his house, with his silver spoons and other valuable articles.

Parliament, it is generally imagined, will not meet before Christmas.

A grain of oats, sown in the farm of Fernyhat, in Scotland, produced 16 strong luxuriant stalks, and 11 smaller ones. The 16 large stalks containing 1784 grains, all of which were well filled; the 11 small stalks contained 260 grains, but being under growth, were green, and not properly filled. The increase on the whole was consequently 2050 grains.

Miss Owenson's Patriotic Sketches of Ireland, contain as striking a domestic portrait of that country as has ever appeared, and they are particularly interesting at the present moment. Star.

Reverse of Fortune.—There is now living a woman, who once lodged at half-a-crown a week in a poor cabin at the upper end of Mungret-lane, in this city, in a wretched little room, with an earthen floor, and a flock bed without curtains, the occupation of whose owner, (Mary Lock,) was selling poultry about the streets; the writer of this article knew the character alluded to in this situation, and has since known, and now knows her to be the Partner of a Prince's bed; to sing catches and glees; sitting on the right hand of the heir-apparent to the greatest Crown in Europe; to be admired and followed; and by the exertions of her great natural abilities, to be in the actual receipt of at least £2,000 a year: but to her eternal credit be it said, this great 'reverse of fortune' has only rendered her hand "open as day to melting charity," and this woman is Mrs. Jordan.

MATRIMONY.

TO THE GENTLEMEN OF IRELAND.

I will not have a man that's tall,
A man too fat is worse than all;
I will not have a man that's fair,
A man that's black I cannot bear;
A young man is a constant pest,
An old one would my room infest;
A man of sense that's not a man of sense,
Is but a man that's not a man of sense.

The grand fleet, in the Baltic, consists of 59 ships, carrying 2260 guns, viz. 30 entirely new ships of the line, with 1588 guns—14 frigates, with 426—6 cutters, with 133—and 19 smaller vessels, with 116 guns. Besides these, there are in the ports of the Baltic 12 old ships of the line. The fleet of galleys, gun-boats, &c. consists of 189 sail, with 705 guns, viz 20 galleys, of 130 guns—25 floating batteries, with 160—48 gun-boats with 162—and 63 other vessels with 163 guns. The fleet in the Black Sea consists of 41 ships, carrying 1225 guns, viz. 12 ships of the line, with 981 guns—4 frigates, with 162—7 brigantines, with 54—and 14 smaller vessels, with 91 guns. There are also 40 gun-boats, with 52 pieces of cannon, and 80 other boats. The flotilla in the Caspian Sea consists of six vessels, carrying in the whole 70 guns.

Receipt to destroy Rats.—Get some new burnt quicklime, and pound it in a mortar—take also some very dry powdered sugar, and moulder it quite small: loaf sugar would not easily incorporate, and moist or raw sugar would slack the lime. To one part of the sugar, and one part of oatmeal, put two parts of the lime. Mix the whole as completely as possible by squeezing and rubbing them together with the hands, and spread the powder thin, on flat earthen plates, in the way of the Rats. They eat it greedily, and immediately after run for the water, which slacks the lime in their stomach, so that they burst and die. If water be not at hand, a plate with water may be set near the mixture.

THE Malt and Corn Kilns, Stoves, &c. altered and directed under the sanction of his Majesty's Royal Letters Patent to Edward Stephens of Dublin;—Having met the decided approbation of the principal Distillers, Brewers, &c. in the Kingdom, is a sufficient proof that there has been considerable benefit obtained by the introduction of the Patent Furnace, its most conspicuous advantages are, great expedition and safety in drying, saving of fuel, and power of preventing accidental fires, for which it is countenanced by the different Fire Insurance Companies. The price of a Lime Furnace with all parts complete, for a malt or corn kiln, is 40 guineas, and that of a Coal Furnace 30 guineas, (including a license for perpetual use), the drying powers of both are exactly the same, but the former demands a preference, except where lime-stone is difficult to be got, or the kiln inconveniently situated.—For further particulars please apply to Edward Stephens, Merchants Stores, Cole-alley, Dublin, where the Furnaces are continually in use for various purposes; and where (may also be had) every other necessary for completing Malt and Corn Kilns, and Green-house Stoves, &c. on this improved plan:—best manufactured Tiles of all descriptions; Plaster of Paris, chimney, flower, and paint Pots, &c.; arched covering for the flues of boilers and stills; fire clay, fire bricks, and blocks, mill-stones and burrs; patent slate and button blue, starch, smalts, pearl and French barley; lamp-black, sulphur, manganese, oil-witriol, and bleaching salts; luting for stills of a very superior kind, and lime of best quality; steam boilers, iron book-cases, malt-rolls, metal pumps, &c.—Fire compound, to be used in place of lime mortar, in building the fire-works of stills, boilers, salt-pans, furnaces, &c.: prepared terras or puzzalana for building canal walls, and cementing brick and stone work under water.—Also Barnes's patent corn seperators, allowed to be of very considerable utility in seperating and screening corn, malt, &c AUCTION OF BREWERY & CONCERNS.

TO be Sold by Auction on Friday the 27th of November next, at one o'clock, at the Commercial Buildings, Limerick, the Brewery and Corn Stores of Patrick Griffin, Brunswick-street, unquestionably the best situation in Limerick for any business. These concerns are all newly built, and have the additional advantage of an excellent Dwelling-House on the Premises. From their being constructed on the newest and most improved plan for convenience, expedition, and saving of labour, this Auction will be well-worth the attention of Brewers and Corn Merchants.

There are two Coppers not three months in use—the Mill and all other Utensils are quite new. Messrs. MAUNSELLS and KENNEDY will have the Premises shewn to any person inclined to bid for them.

A reasonable number of years will be given for two-thirds of the purchase money.
Limerick, Oct. 30, 1807.

By the Lord Lieutenant General and General Governor of Ireland.—A Proclamation.

WHEREAS his Majesty's service doth at this time require a speedy supply of Seamen and Seafaring Men, to man his Majesty's Fleet which is now fitting out. We do by his Majesty's Command, direct and require all Civil Magistrates in this part of his Majesty's United Kingdom called Ireland, to use their best endeavours to cause all such Seamen or Seafaring Men, fit for his Majesty's service, as may be met with, to be taken up, and sent on board any of his Majesty's ships or vessels in the Ports, or on the Coast of Ireland, or to any of his Majesty's Sea Officers who may be employed to raise men on shore for his Majesty's Fleet, according as the places where such ships or vessels, or such Sea Officers may be respectively stationed shall be nearest. And for the encouragement of the Persons who shall be entrusted with the care of but we do strictly enjoin all such our Captains, Masters, and others, that they do permit no Man to go on board such Ships and Vessels belonging to the States at amity with us, for the purpose of so seizing upon, taking, and bringing away such Persons as aforesaid, for whose discreet and orderly demeanour the said Captains cannot answer—and that they do take especial care that no unnecessary violence be done or offered to any Vessel, or to the remainder of the Crew, from out of which such Persons shall be taken.

And in case of their receiving information of any such Person or Persons being employed, or serving on board of any Ship of War belonging to such Foreign State in amity with us, we do authorize and command our Captains, Masters, and others, commanding our Ships of War, to require of the Captain or Commander of such Foreign Ship of War, that he do forthwith release and discharge such Person or Persons, being our natural-born Subject or Subjects; and if such release and discharge shall be refused, then to transmit information of such refusal to the Commander in Chief of the Squadron under whose orders such Captain or Commander shall be then serving; which information the said Commander in Chief is hereby strictly directed and enjoined to transmit, with the least possible delay, to our Minister residing at the seat of Government of that State to which the said Ship of War shall belong, or to our Lord High Admiral, or Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty for the time being, in order that we, being apprised of such proceeding, may forthwith direct the necessary steps to be taken for obtaining redress from the Government to which such Foreign Ship of War shall belong, for the injury done to us by the unwarranted detention of our natural-born Subjects in the Service of a Foreign State:

And whereas it has further been represented unto us, that divers Mariners and Seafaring Men, our natural-born Subjects, have been induced to accept Letters of Naturalization, or Certificates of Citizenship, from Foreign States, and have been taught to believe that, by such Letters or Certificates, they are discharged from that duty of allegiance which, as our natural-born Subjects, they owe to us; now we do hereby warn all Mariners, Seafaring Men, and others, our natural-born Subjects, that no such Letters of Naturalization, or Certificates of Citizenship, do, or can, in any manner, divest our natural-born Subjects of the Allegiance, or in any degree alter the duty which they owe to us their lawful Sovereign: But, in consideration of the error into which such Mariner or Seafaring Men as aforesaid may have been led, we do hereby publish and declare our free pardon to all such our Subjects, who, repenting of the delusion under which they have acted, shall immediately, upon knowledge of this our Royal Proclamation, withdraw themselves from Foreign Service, and return to their allegiance to us; and we do declare that such our subjects who shall continue in the service of Foreign States, in disregard and contempt of this our Royal Proclamation, will not only incur our just displeasure, but are liable to be proceeded against for such contempt, and shall be proceeded against accordingly; and we do hereby declare, that if any such Masters of Ships, Pilots, Mariners, Seamen, Shipwrights, or other Seafaring Men (being our natural-born Subjects) shall be taken in any Foreign Service by the Algerines, or other Barbary Powers, and carried into slavery, they shall not be reclaimed by us as subjects of Great Britain.

And we do further notify, that all such our subjects as aforesaid, who have voluntarily entered, or shall enter, or voluntarily continue to serve on board of any ships of war belonging to any Foreign States at enmity with us, are and will be guilty of High Treason: And we do by this our Royal Proclamation declare, that they shall be punished with the utmost severity of the law.

Given at our Court at the Queen's Palace, the 16th day of October, 1807, and in the 47th year of our reign.

GOD SAVE THE KING.
