that species of charity, which of all others claims the public attention, as most essentially promoting the interest of mankind, being the best antidote against the degeneracy and corruption, into which the youth of the lower order of the people are likely to fall, from ignorance, idleness, and bad example; and thus banishing poverty and distress, by promoting industry, and preventing and lessening vice, the greatest and most inevitable cause of want and misery. Those who are the lovers of peace and good order, who wish well the common interest of society, and the true happiness of this rising city, have now a favourable opportunity of shewing their zeal for promoting loyalty, industry, and religion among the poor, by their charitable and generous donations, to this useful institution, with their usual liberality. A continuance of which these poor children most humbly crave, after a lapse of two years and a half without an appeal to a liberal public in their behalf, without which this their asylum and only refuge cannot exist:—poor innocent victims, consigned by God himself to the paternal care of the benevolent, they can be to them more than Fathers; they can be their Saviours. Donations, from such as cannot attend, will be thankfully received by the Right Rev. Doctor Young, Rev. Archdeacon Hill, the Clergy of the respective Churches and Chapels, by the Bankers, by Mr. Mac Donnell, at the office of this paper, at the Public Offices, and by Edward Lynch, treasurer.

Lord Ventry, Sir William Godfrey, Bart. and about forty other respectable characters, have entered a strong Protest to the Resolution passed in the County Kerry against Tythes; the reasons assigned for this solemn Protest are expressed in the following terms:—"Well knowing the many difficulties opposed to the formation or establishment, at this critical period, or of any satisfactory commutation for Tithe, or of any substitute which will not press more heavily on the people than the tithe itself; considering, also, that this mode of agitating the question tends materially to produce that irritation so anxiously to be avoided, and which has actually manifested itself already in a large district of this county, we thus publicly enter our solemn Protest against that Petition, as not containing either the sense of the Clergy, or of the Lay Impropropriators or of the landed interest of this county."

Wednesday the 25th inst. a Court Martial was held on board the Magnanime, in Sheerness harbour, for the trial of Capt. O'Connor, his officers and ship's company, for the loss of his Majesty's late sloop Leveret, when they were adjudged to be honorably acquitted.

A few days ago, Mr. Haiden, the gaoler in Clonmel, discovered, concealed in one of the gaol chimnies, two knives, of which the edges had been most ingeniously and nicely toothed, to answer as saws; a strong door wrench, and a considerable quantity of twine, which had been prepared to favour the escape of some of the prisoners.

People addicted to reading not unfrequently add mental to bodily ailment, by the avidity with which they lay hold of Medical Books, few of which are calculated for any but the Faculty.—There is however an exception, which it is the interest of both sexes to consult, and which we particularly recommend to those who wish to persevere in a prudent course—and to Parents and Instructors, who have the Health as well as the
