

family vault at Westport, in the County Mayo. Galgo, Barnardones Master, arrived at Cove from es. in nine days, brings a rumour of Joseph Boat- having been made a prisoner at Madrid, and the French et from that city.

Importation of wine from Oporto into London has ne time past exceeded on the average, fifty thousand weekly. The importation of wines from France surprising extent, considering the difficulty which our intercourse with that country. The entries at Custom-House of London for the last week, was 3020 s; and during the last week preceding, 6899 gallons. torrents have been so violent at Bath as to throw several houses in Bedford-street, and bury the inhabitants in the ruins. Ten bodies have already been found, been carried to the hospital dreadfully wounded.— families have been totally ruined.

Report prevailed on Friday, in London, of the elope- of a Secretary to a public Establishment, with a con- siderable sum of money.

We are much concerned to state that that gallant and valiant officer, Lord Blaney, now lies dangerously bruised with a little Blaney. During a most severe fox chase, on Monday last, with the celebrated little pack belonging to Mr. his Lordship's horse fell upon him, in leaping a wall, and he is apprehended fractured three of his ribs.

Meeting of the Catholic fellow citizens took place on Monday inst. at the Cock Tavern, Henry-street, among a number of the rank, talent, and property of the county appeared.—It was proposed by Counsellor O'Gorman, a general meeting of his Catholic fellow citizens should be called to take into consideration the wisdom and expediency of preferring their claims to Parliament at the present moment; and that Lord Fingall give such notice to the public as would enable them to come prepared on a day of such moment. Mr. O'Gorman said, "he preferred the voice of the people to the voice of a party, and therefore anxious his fellow citizens should judge for themselves." The question was warmly debated, and a considerable majority appearing for Counsellor O'Gorman's proposition, a division was loudly called for.—Tellers were appointed, and nothing remained to be done but to put the question, when, to the astonishment of all present, the noble Lord who presided, retired from the Chair!—The motion against, as well as those for the motion, seemed to think that this was not exactly the duty of the Chairman, the object was obtained and thus the Catholic Petition postponed pro tempore!—D. E. P.

We celebrated Thomas Paine, lately died, in France.—It induced him so soon to quit America, after he had with such difficulty effected his passage thither, has not transpired.—He died obscurely the victim of intoxication—and descended unlamented to the grave.—The man whose talents were powerful auxiliaries in establishing one revolution—and who bore a distinguished part in a second, which approached the peace and stability of Europe—who warred against the most sacred order, divine as well as human, has quitted the stage of his life, without one friend to shed a tear over his remains, or one son to transmit his memory to a future age. What a lesson for morals!—What a powerful memento!

Mr. Webb, of the Custom-house, who while crossing the river, nearly opposite Mole-street, on Monday last, suddenly fell down in the ferry boat and expired.

We are sorry to hear that two vessels were lost in our last night, one bound from Waterford to Holyhead for Cork. He arrived in Kilkenny, and was entertained with his brother Officers on Sunday last (being halt) by the Gentlemen of the Cavan Mess. His anxiety to promote the marching arrangements of the following morning, occasioned him to withdraw from the table after he had taken but a few glasses of wine—what direction he took can only be suspected, but it is dreadful to relate he has never since being heard of.—Of the certainty of his fate, however, there is but too melancholy a proof. In the general search which took place on the following morning, his Hat was discovered floating in the river, into which it is supposed, being a stranger to the town, and in the darkness of the night, he unfortunately fell.

MARRIED—At Ostlands, in the County of Meath, J. Thompson, Esq. to Miss Thompson, daughter of Mr. Thompson, of Roscommon, Esq.—At Castle-ly, M. Mitchell to Miss Kelly.

Sunday evening, two privates of the 66th Regt. on their march through Clonmel for Cork, who had been sent forward to procure billets for the division that arrived in that town on Monday last, were way-laid on the road at Twomile-bridge, by five ruffians who most cruelly beat them and took their arms from them.

The 2d Battalion of 53d regt. under the command of Col. Bingham, were to embark yesterday at Cork, and this day the 2d Bat. of 66th were also to embark at the same harbour. They are to proceed for England in the first instance, where they are to be joined by four other regiments, under the command of General Beresford, and their final destination is not mentioned.
