e, the Catholics of Ireland, have made for the relief of our grievances. The of men, both in and out of Parliament, of Office, were decidedly in favour of and justice of our claims; and they fur-it was necessary to the very existence of erest in its defence, a population of from ons of Catholics, constituting more than United Kingdom. We are now unhapmentally convinced, that no principle of of reasoning, is sufficient to counteract ence which threatens the Empire with nation, and consequent destruction.— ants and Defrauders would put to hazard th; reigning Family and the integrity of her than restore the people to the privi-stitution, which would produce such ra of abuses as must deprive themselves ity of undue influence and speculation.— ouraging circumstances, without hope sent, we are unwilling to agitate our on to Parliament, feeling that rejection the discontent already existing in our cannot be indifferent to the pernicious
