Sheriffs, and Citizens of the City.

GENTLEMEN,

“Your congratulations on my arrival in Limerick are most gratifying to me, and I beg to return you my most sincere thanks.”

“It cannot but be highly flattering to me that the hopes you entertained at the time of my Government here, in your opinion, and I beg leave to assure you, that they are and always will be, my chief aim to the service of His Majesty, by a just Administration, which form our most excellent Consti-”

To his Grace CHARLES Duke of Richmond, Lord Lieutenant General and Governor of Ireland.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE

“WE His Majesty's most dutiful and affectionate subjects, the resident Clergy of the Diocese of Limerick, avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded by your arrival here, to convey to you the tribute of our most respectful attachment.”

“We humbly beg leave to express our grateful sentiments to His Majesty, for the attention to the interests of Religion, and to the Welfare of the established Church, which has been the subject of your Grace's Administration, We join in the tribute of our affectionately due to your Grace from the Clergy, and we lament that disturbances have still exist in this Diocese, it is with pain we can state that they have in a great measure been made to the Laws of the Land, and Government has been attended with beneficial effects.”

“Members of an order whose duty it is to promote peace amongst men, We feel and endeavour of your Grace to console the people, and are deeply sensible of the importance of the trust of its Govern-”

HIS GRACE'S ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN,

“To the resident Clergy of the Diocese of Limerick, for the Tribute of their Affection on my arrival in their Diocese.”

“I also return them my unfeigned thanks for their Expressions of Loyalty to His Majesty.”

“It is a matter of great concern to me, that disturbances, however slight, should exist in this Diocese. The exertions of the Clergy, by your influence and example, will, I am confident, succeed in bringing those deluded persons to the mild Laws of the United Kingdom, and make them feel that it is the duty of the Inhabitants of this Country to support under our excellent Constitution, and the administration of public justice.”

To his Grace CHARLES Duke of Richmond, Lord Lieutenant General and Governor of Ireland.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE

“WE His Majesty's most dutiful and affectionate subjects, the Merchants and Bankers of the City of Limerick, beg leave to express our acknowledgments for the honor of your arrival in this City.”

“Those mild and impartial principles, which mark the general Administration, have been conspicuous in this Vicinity.”

“When lawless violence or disturbance has troubled Society, and outraged Law, we arm yourself with those terrors which seem to less dignified minds to have been found sufficient strength in the Law, to enforce obedience and command.”
