Tuesday a duel was fought at Haddington, England. The parties, we learn, were Captain Rutherford, of the 25th regiment, and Mr. Cahill, the surgeon, who, in consequence of a misunderstanding which took place in the mess-room, met in a park near Haddington, accom- panied by seconds, and exchanged two shots, by both of which Captain Rutherford was wounded, and died soon afterwards. Mr. Cahill, has, in consequence, disappeared. Captain R. was well known in this City.
