ON THE LATE VICTORY IN PORTUGAL.

'Tis done! the Iron God of War,
Has roll'd his Thunder from afar,
And wav'd his blood-stain'd hand;
At length has burst the battle cloud,
Now waves in air the paly shroud,
Proud Gallia's host at length has bow'd,
To Britain's chosen band.
That Chieftain who, with gallant pride,
Has often stemm'd the battle's tide,
And spread curs'd ruin round;
Who oft the fiery bolt has hurl'd,
In triumph 'gainst the Northern World,
And wav'd Death's banner wide unfurl'd,
In icy terrors bound;
Has felt the volli'd light'ning's blast,
That on his Legions wide has cast,
The night of dark despair;
From Britain's Sons the thunders broke,
While desolation, veil'd in smoke,
In hollow accents loudly spoke,
And rent with shrieks the air.
But mark, amidst the bursting storm,
On yonder cliff reclines some form,
Enrob'd in Virgin Snow:
'Tis Liberty that points her hand;
With joy she waves her magic wand,
For lo! she sees Britannia's Band,
Crush her eternal foe.

Limerick, October 24.

Colonel Spread, of the 37th Regt. our gallant and truly valued countryman, has arrived in Cork, after an absence of five years in the West Indies.

Lord Henry Fitzgerald, Lord Gormanstown, Major Lloyd, and the Hon. Captain Southwell are among the latest arrivals at Cheltenham.

On Wednesday last, Lord Ormond and suite embarked at Donaghadee for Portpatrick.

To-morrow, at ten o'Clock, the Yeomanry Brigade of this City, will Parade for the purpose of firing practice ammunition.

Yesterday morning, Richard Brahan, skinner, without any previous indisposition, fell down suddenly in a shop at John's-gate, and instantly expired.
