

average, but more particularly by the dissenters, which on the motion of Lord Ne, was deferred for six months without a division. The House of Commons last night, Mr. Palmer's contested claim was carried by a majority of 107. Yesterday the inhabitants of Windsor and others again gratified by seeing his Majesty on horseback. His Majesty came out of the Castle at half-past twelve in very cheerful conversation with Princesses Augusta and Sophia and his attendants: he mounted his favourite white horse, Adonis, and rode into the Park, accompanied by Princesses Augusta and a, General Gwynne, Garth, and Colonel Taylor. His Majesty did not return from his ride till a quarter of one.

Letters from Cadiz to the 10th inst. completely confirm the statements of the enemy having raised the siege of that place.

It was reported last night, that during the retreat of the French towards Salamanca, Massena had been made prisoner.

The Cadiz Gazette, of the 2d of May, contains a letter from General Castanos, dated from his headquarters at Fuente del Maestre, April 21, stating, that on the 17th, General Beresford ordered Count de Penne to Villa Franca with the Spanish cavalry under his command, to reconnoitre Usagre.

Letters from Corunna to the 14th, afford considerable confirmation to our late accounts from France of the flight of Joseph Bonaparte to Paris.

LONDON---THURSDAY, MAY 23.

We have received Paris Papers to the 13th instant, which state the arrival of Marshal Ney in that city, but do not assign any reason for his return.

The important event of the defeat of Massena, on the 18th inst. still rests on the authority of the news from Oporto. No doubts as to its authenticity, however, are entertained. The following is a copy of a letter transmitted by the clerk of a most respectable merchant at Oporto, to his principal in London, which was put on board the Sarah, Captain Heally:

Official communication from Governor Trant to the acting Governor of Oporto, dated May 11.

On the 5th inst. between Almeida and Ciudad Rodrigo, a tremendous action took place, the result of which was, that 4000 of the enemy killed and wounded, and 7000 on the field, and seven hundred prisoners.

The regiments that most distinguished themselves on this glorious day were, the 71st British, though they lost 169, including 12 officers: the Portuguese regiments were, Nos. 7, 19, 9, and 21, and Cacadores 1, 2, and 6: in short, all the troops that were in this action covered themselves with glory.

We are anxiously expecting further particulars of this great event, and which you will probably get before we do.

This has been a day of great rejoicing, &c."

A transport has arrived at Plymouth with a number of British invalids, (sick and wounded), from Cadiz. The vessel was only ten days on her passage; consequently the accounts she brings are of a more recent date than any that have been made public; they are, however, of much importance, any farther than they contradict the statements in circulation of the enemy having raised the siege of Cadiz. No movement or active of any such design had taken place. The enemy continued to strengthen their works, and evinced no disposition to quit their ground. The Spaniards are said to be extremely dissatisfied with the acts and conduct of both the Cortes and Regency. Much jealousy and dissension still continues to prevail among the members of government.

We are sorry to learn that the French party in Cadiz consists wholly of the upper ranks. The middle and lower classes adore the English, and want nothing but good leaders.

a loaded musket and a ball driven through his skull, of which he died in a few minutes.—The perpetrator of this inhuman act, a fellow of the name of Darby Kelly, was shortly after apprehended through the exertions of Oliver Stokes, and Geo. Church, Esqrs. and on Friday last he was brought to Tralee and lodged in the county goal. An inquest was held on the body of the deceased, by John Weekes Esq. Coroner, and a verdict returned—"that the said Mathew Mullooney was killed and murdered by a shot fired at him from a loaded musket by Jeremiah Kelly."

A letter from London, dated the 18th instant, states, that "a meeting took place to-day of several noblemen and gentlemen at the St. Alban's Tavern, to consider of paying a mark of respect to the Irish Catholics, by giving a public dinner to their delegates, who are on their way over to present an address and petition to the Prince Regent. The 7th of June is the day fixed upon. Lord Moira is to take the chair, and the following noblemen and gentlemen have already signified their intention of acting as Stewards:—Lords Tavistock, Holland, Ormonde, Ossulton, Donoughmore, Landaff, Charlemont, Stanley, H. Fitzgerald, A. Hamilton, Sir J. Newport, Messrs. Sheridan, Whitbread, Grattan, Combe, La Touches, Parnell, W. Smith, Tighe, Generals Ferguson, Mathew, &c. &c. It is expected that the company will exceed 500 persons."

The inhabitants of Londonderry have unanimously voted an address of thanks to the King's County regiment of militia, for their exemplary conduct during a residence of two years in that city.

The observations in a Paper of Saturday last, we consider beneath our notice.

On Wednesday after a short illness, at his seat at Castle Maistir, Cork, in the 76th years of his age, Richd. Longfield, Viscount and Baron Longueville, Governor of that county a trustee of the linen manufacture, and a Privy Councillor for Ireland. His Lordship embarked at an early period into an active public life, and represented Cork city in several parliaments. His relatives and friends ever experienced in him a strenuous patron. His numerous tenantry and the peasantry, will long lament a humane protector and benefactor, as he was as ready to relieve their wants as to guide them by his advice. By his Lordship's death a vacancy occurs in the representation of the Irish nobility, his Lordship having been elected for life one of the Twenty-eight representative peers at the Union, and dying without issue his title becomes extinct.
