Particulars of the engagement between the United States frigate President, Commodore Rogers, and the British sloop of war, Little Belt, Capt. Bingham. On the night of the 16th inst about nine o'clock, the frigate fell in with the sloop of war, about 20 miles N. E. of Cape Henry; and when within pistol shot of her, Commodore Rogers hailed her—no answer was given—Commodore Rogers hailed her a second time, and in the act of hailing a shot was fired from the sloop of war into the frigate, which struck her mainmast.—The frigate immediately fired a shot into the sloop of war she then poured a broadside into the frigate.—Here the action commenced, and continued about 15 minutes, when the sloop of war ceased firing. The frigate remained near her all night. The next morning Commodore Rogers sent an officer on board, to offer any assistance they might require; and to express his regret at the circumstance that had occurred the preceding evening. The sloop of war proved to be the Little Belt, Capt. Bingham, who apologized, and gave as a reason for firing into the frigate, that he supposed her to be a Frenchman; and politely declined any assistance as he believed he would be able to reach a port in safety. The Little Belt lost or killed and wounded thirty men, was very much injured, having had nearly all her masts and spars shot away, besides several shots in her hull. This sloop of war is a Danish built vessel, and was taken at Copenhagen. In Steel's list she is rated an 18 gun sloop, and carries 32 pound carronades. The President received some trifling damage in her rigging, and had one boy slightly wounded in the arm. A gentleman just arrived from Washington relates, that he was officially informed, that Mr Barlow would not sail for France till after the arrival of the Essex; and that his departure then would depend upon circumstances.—New York Gazette.

THURSDAY, JUNE 20.

It appears by recent and authentic accounts from Spain that the French are putting in motion a considerable part of their disposable force, which they are about to concentrate, with a view of again taking a position upon, and endeavouring to maintain the line of the Tagus. With this design, General Marmont began to move from Salamanca towards Avila, on the 26th and 27th ult. whither he intended to transfer his head-quarters, while a part of his army was to be cantoned at Talavera de la Reyna. Drouot, with 5000 men, also took the same direction on the 16th. These movements, and the intentions which they indicate have not escaped the vigilance and the sagacity of Lord Wellington. He will not fail closely to observe them, though he may not proceed to open or direct resistance until after the fall of Badajoz, and of Ciudad Rodrigo.—The latter place it does not appear to be the intention of the enemy to maintain; for they have already destroyed the redoubts on the heights of San Francisco, and mined most of the principal defences. Badajoz was not expected to surrender on the 4th of June, as mentioned in the last Lisbon papers, but it could not hold out beyond the 10th. It can excite but little surprise in those who have observed the pertinacious character of Napoleon, that notwithstanding the disasters his army has experienced, he should make another attempt to retrieve his affairs in the Peninsula, and again to establish his forces in the positions which they formerly occupied. We may, therefore, look to an engagement between the French and Allied forces upon a far larger scale than has yet taken place. Such an event we can contemplate without any apprehension, not only from a view of the amount of the force which will be opposed to the enemy, but from the high confidence with which we are inspired by the experience of what has so recently happened in that quarter. But to enable our readers to form their own judgment and calculations of the event, we here subjoin an accurate account of the forces which the contending parties can respectively bring into the field:
