The Countess of Charleville has established a School on the Lancasterian plan at Tullamore, and Lord Charleville has behaved with great liberality in promoting it. The Countess Dowager of Ormonde and Ossory has established one at Castlecomer, which is likely to convey the blessing of Instruction to numbers. The Lancasterian School at Belfast, has 500 children in it.
 Many of our Nobility and Gentry are about to follow the same example. System of Education calculated only to instruct the mind in Reading Writing and Arithmetic without bigotry or intolerance, is well adapted to the meridian of Ireland. Dr. Bell's schools on the reverse are church of England schools. The Bishop of Exeter has with either a redundancy or a deficiency of, Christian charity, of which my readers will judge, determined to educate children of ALL denominations in the principles of the established church. It has given great offence in Devonshire. Mr. Lancaster's labours in Ireland are likely to terminate in the education of 60,000 children, but no proselytism, nor bigotry.

Sunday evening, between five and six o'clock, a fire broke out in the chandling house of Mr. Thos. Long, Mallow-lane, Cork, which raged with unabated fury for about an hour and a half, when it was at length got under. An adjacent store of Mr. Simon Donovan's was frequently on fire, but was saved; as was most of the soap utensils.

The Duke of Devonshire will shortly lead to the hy-meneal altar, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Lord Scarsdale.

None of the murderers of Mr. Marr and his family, are yet discovered. Several persons have been taken up on suspicion, but no positive proof could be adduced against any of them.

On Monday a cause came on to be tried in the court of Common Pleas, for a libel, before Lord Norbury and a respectable Jury, in which Thos. King, Esq. was plaintiff, George Jefferys, Esq. was the defendant, when a verdict was found for the plaintiff for £1250 damages, and 6d costs.

Friday last, two men named Patrick Keliher and Richard Carney, were brought into Tralee, by a strong detachment of the Militia cavalry, under the command of Giles Rae, Esq. and lodged in the county jail charged with the murder of Garret Pearse, at the fair of Castlemain, on Monday last.

ANOTHER MOST DREADFUL MURDER OF A WHOLE FAMILY IN LONDON!

It is our melancholy duty to record another most woeful calamity, in which a whole family has been again most savagely butchered!

Last night, between eleven and twelve o'clock, another most sanguinary and horrid murder was committed at No. 81, Gravel-lane, Wapping, but a few yards distant from the former scene of blood in Ratchiffe Highway. The following narration has been taken from a person who was on the spot a few minutes after the dreadful affair; it may therefore be relied on. Between eleven and twelve o'clock last night, the neighbours opposite the house just mentioned were alarmed by a cry of "Murder!" coming from a person in his shirt, who was descending from a two pair of stairs window by the sheets of his bed knotted together. On his reaching the street, he informed those who were assembled by his cries, that there were murderers in the house, in the act of assassinating the whole family. An alarm was instantly given, and two resolute men, one named Ludgate, and the other Hawes, armed themselves with axes and pokers, and broke open the door, when dreadful to relate, they first found the mistress of the house and the maid servant lying upon one another by the kitchen fire, with their throats cut from ear to ear.— On continuing their search, they proceeded to the cellar, where they found the master of the house quite dead, one of his legs broken, and his head nearly severed from his body. The scene of this horrid affair was the King's Arms public house, and the unfortunate persons murdered are Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, the landlord and landlady, and their servant maid Biddy, an Irish girl. The person who made his escape by the window, as above described, was a lodger—his name is Turner.

From him we have learnt the following additional particulars.—He states, that when in bed and asleep, he was alarmed by a great noise below; he then went cautiously down stairs, where he saw two men, one in a large watchcoat, and the other in a flannel jacket, rifling the pockets of the landlady Mrs. Williamson, who was then lying near the kitchen fire, apparently lifeless.
 Turner then came to the resolution of getting out of his window, which, by the aid of the bed clothes, he effected, leaving Mr. Williamson's niece in bed.

The unfortunate sufferers were all dressed and going about their usual business when they were murdered, and it is supposed that the savages who committed the barbarous act had entered the house upon pretence of obtaining refreshment, a short time before the landlord shut up his house for the night.

We lament to say that the villains escaped—they got out at the back door, and were seen running over Dock Hill, Wapping, in great perturbation.

All Wapping was immediately in an uproar. The drums of the volunteers beat to arms, the fire bells were rung, and every person flew in consternation to the spot.
 The police searched every house around, and every boat in the river, with every cart, waggon, & carriage was stopped.

A great number of suspicious character have, of course been stopped; and the Magistrate are actively employed in examining evidence.

The general conjecture at present is that the murderers are the same desperadoes who assassinated Mr.
 Marr and his family; and it is still asserted that both atrocities have been perpetrated by foreigners. We trust, therefore, that every foreign villain, of whatever rank or degree, throughout the country, will be instantly taken into custody, and kept as hostages for the security of the lives of his Majesty's subjects.

The bodies exhibited the same frightful appearance with those of Mr. Marr's family. The skulls of Mrs.
 Williamson and the maid are dreadfully fractured, apparently by an obtuse iron instrument. Mr. Williamson's skull also fractured, and the lower part of his face, chin and throat, are dreadfully cut and mangled as if he has been able to struggle with the assassins.

Mr. Having seen in your paper of the 21st inst. a letter signed "Ross Flood, Lieutenant, Galway, regt. denying having used any expressions injurious to the character or honour of Assistant Surgeon O'Reilly, since a meeting took place at Bruff, either in the presence of or to Mr. Tottenham." I feel it incumbent on me to say, that the words which passed between me and Mr. O'Reilly were made use of by Mr.
 Flood in my presence; at the same time I am decidedly of opinion that Mr. Flood did not intend, by such expressions, to injure the character or honour of Mr.
 O'Reilly, as on it being represented to him, that the circumstance came to the knowledge of that gentleman, he wrote me a letter, requesting my interference with him, and enclosed me a statement (a copy of which is annexed) of the affair at Bruff, to which transaction the expressions in question solely alluded, and requested that I would communicate the same to Mr. O'Reilly, which I accordingly did, and gave him a copy thereof, at his (Mr. O'Reilly's) request.

GEORGE TOTTENHAM.
 Ennis, December 23, 1811.

* * At a hostile meeting which occurred at Bruff between Assistant Surgeon O'Reilly, Galway militia, and me, I have no hesitation to say, he behaved on the occasion like a gentleman and a man of strict honour.
 Pray communicate the same to Mr. O'Reilly. Yours, &c. &c." "ROSS FLOOD."
 "Athlone, November 4.

"To Mr. Tottenham, Ennis."

On Thursday morning, an inquest was held by the Mayor of Wexford, on the body of William Green, a young sweep, who was so dreadfully burned on the 3d inst. by his father's lighting a faggot in the chimney which the boy had run up to escape his tyranny. After the testimony of several witnesses, the jury returned a verdict, "That the deceased came by his death in consequence of being burned by his father, Luke Green."

There is (says a London Sunday Paper) now living in a room at a chandler's shop Hounslow, a Countess, Peers, the actual sister of a Princess, and half-sister of shortly to a corporal in a regiment of dragoons.

 land. She was in good health, on the preceding Saturday, and in the course of jocular conversation named the persons whom she should like to be her bearers, if she should die soon! In the afternoon of the same day she was taken ill; and she died on the day above stated.
 —At Nenagh, on Tuesday last much lamented by his brother officers, Adjutant Neil Murry, of the 6th Garrison Battalion—his death was occasioned by the wound of a musket ball, which he received in June last, whilst directing the movements of the Battalion in a sham fight near that town—his remains were interred on Friday last, attended by the Regt. the Nenagh Yeomanry; and a number of the gentry of that place and vicinity.—At Batavia, immediately after the conquest, Mr.
 Richard Maunsell, midshipman on board the Proeris,

ADARE-CHAPEL.
 THE REV. J. LEE having been some time since under the painful necessity of discontinuing the remaining Work of the Chapel for want of a considerable part of the Subscriptions so liberally promised at the commencement of the Undertaking, begs leave not only in his own justification, but for the satisfaction of those whose Donations have been gratefully received, & faithfully expended, to state that there remains the sum of £83 10 4½ as yet unpaid of that Fund upon which he was originally led to calculate, through the kindness of his friends and the benevolence of the neighbouring public.
 This sum, if now contributed would enable him to resume and prosecute with some effect this desirable Work early in Spring. He therefore confidently trusts that this SECOND APPEAL will be sufficient to refresh the memories of such as have forgotten their Voluntary Engagements towards this most essential purpose, and thereby enable him to add their names to the respectable List of Subscribers who have paid since his last Address on this subject, which shall be speedily published.
