He asked them whether they would not hold themselves bound to our Sovereign Lord the King in the sum of one hundred pounds, good and lawful money of the realm, to prosecute James Fisher and Michael Glynn, when they should be found—they answered "yes."— They were then discharged.

The Countess of Clare is expected this week at her Ladyship's seat, Mount Shannon, from Bath.

The board of trade convened a meeting of the per- sons interested in the wine trade, and proposed to them the following regulations:

That on exporting from hence one hogshead of su- gar, they should be allowed to import from France (for exportation only) two hogsheads of wine, or one pun- cheon (not exceeding 120 gallons) of brandy.

On exporting from hence 10 cwt. of round coffee, to be allowed to import (for re-exportation only) two hogsheads of wine.

In all cases the interchange to commence by the ex- portation of the sugar or coffee from hence, or the re- turn, whether of wine or brandy, not to be admitted to home consumption.

This proposition is to be considered as a mere sug- gestion on the part of the board of trade, and open to farther discussion. The final determination is expect- ed at the next meeting.

The losses by shipwrecks, in men and vessels, with- in the last three months, exceed the aggregate loss sus- tained by our navy, in all the naval battles fought and victories won, within the last 20 years.

NAVAL APPOINTMENTS.—Captain Carroll, to the Watchful; Lieut. Nicholas Colthurst to the Sceptre; Lieut. William Walker to the Prince of Wales; Lieut. Donovan to the Melpomene; Lieut. Dunn to the Prim- rose; Lieut. E. White to the Bulwark.

We have pleasure in stating, that the gallant services displayed by Captain Robert Mansell, of his Majesty's ship Procris, have been rewarded by the Lords of the Admiralty promoting him to the rank of Post Captain.

Thursday morning, at two o'clock, Philip William Russell, Esq. of Rutland, in the suburbs of this city, being at a house in Glin, in this county, convenient to the receipt of his rents in that vicinity, was attacked by five fellows, two of whom armed, entered his apart- ment, and after threatening his life, robbed him of a writing desk, containing upwards of £200 in bank notes and also of his wearing apparel, which was in the room, with which they absconded.

To Mr. Lancaster's system of liberal and excellent Education, our readers are aware is now zealously op- posed, under the special auspices of the present minist- ry, Dr. Bell's circumscribed and narrowed system, which according to the Cant of the Courier, has a spe- cial saving for "the established church." Before the lamented indisposition of our venerable sovereign ren- dered him insensible to public occurrences, it is well known that he was a warm patron of Mr. Lancaster's plan; and it is equally notorious that the Lancasterian system has also the countenance and approval of the Prince Regent. To point out some of the other pa- trons of Mr. Lancaster, it is only necessary for us to remind the public of the meeting of his friends that was held in London, at the Freemason's Tavern on the 11th of May last, where amongst others their Royal High- nesses the Dukes of Sussex and Kent, his Grace the Dukes of Bedford, the Marquis of Lansdowne, W. Smith Esq. M. P. Francis Horner, Esq. M. P. Hon. J. Aber- crombie, M. P. and H. Brougham, Esq. M. P. attended; and moved and seconded resolutions.

On Thursday last a young woman employed at one of the slips near Mr. England's brewery, Ennis, in en- deavouring to catch a small tub, which the impetu- osity of the tide had carried out, fell in, and floated down below the new bridge, where she was fortunately perceived by Mr. O'Donnell, who very humanely pro- cured a rope, and hastening to her relief, the end of which was seized by a man present, who instantly jump- ed in, and succeeded in rescuing the unfortunate female from a watery grave.

been conferred on the gallant officers and seamen cou- posing our navy, for the performance of some noble achievement for the benefit of their country; and scarcely a week passes by that we do not read accounts in the newspapers of brilliant acts of courage displayed against the enemy by those employed in the sea service, and, it is indeed an unexpected sight to see British sea- men deserting their King, and arranging themselves under the banners of the enemy. You, however, have each of you been found guilty under a prosecution con- ducted against you, not only with humanity, but with a degree of delicacy which must have been evident to every one present during the course of these proceed- ings; the law in its humanity, directs you should have assistance, and you have had the most able. The of- fence of which you have been found guilty is the highest except effecting the very death of the King, that our law recognizes. The murder of a single individual is a heinous offence; but how much more aggravated an one is it to aid and assist the enemy in their efforts to de- stroy a whole people. You have by your conduct tempt- ed the enemy to use, with aggravated severity, any of your countrymen who may be so unfortunate as to fall into their power, by shewing them that there are even English seamen so base as to be induced, by the hard- ships of imprisonment to quit the service of their coun- try, and enter into that of the enemy. It now only remains for me to pass upon you the sentence of the law, a duty painful indeed, and one which, after hav- ing passed so great a portion of my professional life without having been called to exercise, I had hoped it should also have passed through it without the neces- sity arising which should call for the performance of it. That sentence, however, is—"That you be taken to the place from whence you came, and from thence (severally) drawn on a hurdle to the place of execution, there to be hanged by the neck not till you are dead, but to be cut down, and whilst yet alive, your bowels taken out: your heads cut off, your bodies cut in quar- ters, and those quarters to be at the disposal of the King—and the Lord have Mercy on your Souls!!!"
