

stopped, and Mr. Maurice O'Connor got out of the one, and captain Twiss out of the other—Mr. O'Connell, not having the least idea of any hostile intention towards him, entered into conversation as soon as he came up with Lieut.-colonel Crosbie—and as he was talking to him, he was assailed by Mr. Maurice O'Connor, in language the most abusive and offensive; indeed so offensive as to insure the consequences which followed—a blow inflicted by Mr. O'Connell on Mr. Maurice O'Connor. As soon as the blow was received, the latter stepped back, drew out a pistol which he carried concealed in his bosom, took his aim, and fired.—The ball penetrated the sleeve of Mr. O'Connell's surcoat and coat, and passing along his arm, the skin of which it slightly raised, passed out by his elbow. The report of the shot collected a number of the country people, and they would have inflicted summary punishment, but for the active exertions of Mr. O'Connell. It required all his influence and all his strength to save the lives of Mr. M. O'Connor, and indeed of the entire party.

A warrant for a capital felony has since been issued, and when our accounts left Kerry, Mr. M. O'Connor had absconded. It is said he would have been arrested, but for the interposition of a magistrate, the Provost of Tralee. We decline stating the particulars of this gentleman's interference, as we understand it is to be discussed in the King's Bench.

Mr. O'Connell is, of course, determined to prosecute with the utmost rigour. He is brother to Counsellor O'Connell, and his family intend immediately to offer a large reward for the apprehension of the accused.

THE GENERAL ADVERTISER.

LIMERICK—TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24.

Five British mails have arrived since our last, by which we have received London Journals to the 19th inst. inclusive. The intelligence by this conveyance is of much moment, especially the long expected despatches from the Marquis Wellington, which we have detailed in our preceding columns, as full as they appeared in the London Gazette Extraordinary of Wednesday last. So heavy is the press of important intelligence, that our limits will not allow us even to point out the most prominent features.

There are accounts from the United States, but they communicate nothing important. Things remain statu quo in Canada.

Commodore Rodgers, has commenced another cruise, off the Western Islands. The West India convoy has been detained in consequence off Portsmouth, and several ships of war have been ordered out to give the American commander a suitable reception.

Parliament will certainly meet this day. On Monday next, the 30th, it is said, the Prince Regent will deliver the speech from the Throne; or, at all events, it will be delivered, and business will commence on that day.—It is again confidently rumoured, that Mr. Vansittart means to propose an addition to the income-tax.

The appointment of Earl Moira, to be Governor-General of Bengal, and commander in chief in India, has been officially announced.

Mr. Tierney it is said, will be placed at the head of the Madras government, on a new arrangement.

Lieut. Colonel Thomas M'Mahon, of the 17th Regt. Infantry, (late Assistant Adj. General in this Garrison) is, we understand, appointed Military Secretary to Lord Moira, and proceeds with his Lordship to India.

General Abercrombie, Col. C. Doyle, and Mr. Thomas Moore, celebrated for his translation of Anacreon, are also mentioned for situations in India.

His Grace the Lord Lieutenant, has offered a reward of £200 for the apprehension and conviction of any of the persons who fired at sentinels in this city. We had prepared a copy of the proclamation for insertion, which want of room obliges us to postpone.

Friday evening, some miscreants set fire to a great quantity of hay and corn the property of George Wm. Stacpoole, Esq. of Edenvale. Now if any thing can tend to increase the evil of this atrocious act, it is the general and well known character of Mr. Stacpoole, for every thing that can exalt him both as a landlord to a numerous tenantry, and a gentleman who is esteemed and respected by all who are acquainted with him.—Upwards of 200 tons of hay and a large rick of corn were consumed, the blaze of which illuminated the country for several miles round. The damage is estimated at 1000 guineas.

On Thursday last, a duel was fought near Loughrea, between Michael George French, Esq. of Eyrecourt Castle. M. P. and John Browne, of Moyne, Esq. when Mr. Pendergast's first shot took effect a little above Mr. Browne's groin; the ball came out at the opposite side, and Mr. Browne, we understand, is not considered in danger.

We (Glasgow Chron.) understand that it is intended the great portion of their lives. We should rejoice to have heard that the substance had been drawn up by some man like Lord Moira, and then, that it had been handed over to these gentlemen, to put it in the legal forms—but when the work is, in the first instance, committed to the conception and execution of the Journeymen, no map, no sketch, no model to direct them—how can we be astonished, if the structure thus produced, be useless, or dangerous, or ridiculous in its execution?—Ibid.

Friday Joseph Gibson, seaman of his Majesty's ship la Loire, sentenced to suffer death, for maliciously stabbing Lieut. Croker, son of the Rev. Richard Croker, of this city, suffered the sentence passed upon him, on board that ship at Spithead.
