...DIED.—A few days ago, Major Wolfe, of the Kildare Regiment of Militia.—At Palermo, Major John Turner, of the 87th foot.—At Dunbarton, Captain Kirkus, of the East York Militia.—In London, Miss Margaret Glenny, daughter of Joseph Glenny, of Newry, Esq. Attorney.—At his house near Lisburn, aged 88 years, James Higginson, Esq. late a Lieutenant in the Royal Navy.—At Stewardstown, County Tyrone, on the 20th ult. the Rev. Moses Chambers, Presbyterian Clergyman of that place.—At Leicester, Dr. Vaughan, father of Mr. Serjeant Vaughan.—In Watertford, John Walsh, Esq. of High-street.—At Kiltinane-Castle, of a decline, in her 18th year, Miss Glover, daughter of Colonel Glover, 11th foot, and grand daughter of Edward Cooke, Esq.—At Strawberry Bank, near Dalkeith, George Budge, Esq. of the Rox-shire militia, aged 59.—At Tobago, Capt. Richard Penson, of the ship Stebeck Hall.—At Plymouth, aged 66, Mrs. Redding, relict of the late Rev. R. Redding, Minister of the Baptist Church at Truro.—At Penrith, in the 81st year of her age, Mrs. Bennett, wife of Captain Bennett, Penrith Local Militia.—At York, Mrs. Elizabeth Penalton; she went to bed in good health the preceding night, and was found dead in the morning.—On the 27th ult. at Bounds, near Tunbridge the Baron de Roll, one of the oldest Colonels in the British Army. He raised the regiment of Foreigners which take his name, and whose eminent services in almost every quarter of the globe have repeatedly contributed to the glory of their adopted country. Baron de Roll was Capt. in the Swiss Guards of the King of France previous to the Revolution. From that eventful period, he has uniformly followed the fortunes of the Bourbon family, who ever found in him a faithful and most steadfast adherent. At the risk of his life, he has frequently executed missions of great importance to the individuals of this august family at foreign Courts, and he had just before his death returned from Colberg, where he had accompanied their Royal Highness Monsieur and the Duc d'Angouleme.—In October last, at Surat, Casten John Davis, Esq. surgeon in the Hon.
